Behaviour and Ecology of Spiders Carmen Viera, Marcelo O. Gonzaga, 2017-11-02 Within the last few decades arachnology in the Neotropical region has experienced a great development filling the knowledge gap in one of the most diverse regions of the world Nevertheless large geographical areas remain poorly sampled especially within the Amazon and new genera and species have been continuously discovered even in urban areas In congruence with the recent improvements in research several aspects of the ecology behaviour and natural history of spiders such as interactions with other predators and parasitoids social interactions dispersal patterns habitat requirements mating behaviors among others are being carefully investigated These recent contributions incorporate substantial information on the preexisting knowledge on these subjects every year Our main objective with this book is to present a summary on these new researches and on the currently knowledge on the main subjects involved in the general theme emphasizing the contribution of the rich fauna of the Neotropical region to the research of behaviour and ecology of the spiders

Spider Ecophysiology Wolfgang Nentwig, 2013-02-15 With over 43 000 species spiders are the largest predacious arthropod group They have developed key characteristics such as multi purpose silk types venoms consisting of hundreds of components locomotion driven by muscles and hydraulic pressure a highly evolved key lock mechanism between the complex genital structures and many more unique features After 300 million years of evolutionary refinement spiders are present in all land habitats and represent one of the most successful groups of terrestrial organisms Ecophysiology combines functional and evolutionary aspects of morphology physiology biochemistry and molecular biology with ecology Cutting edge science in spiders focuses on the circulatory and respiratory system locomotion and dispersal abilities the immune system endosymbionts and pathogens chemical communication gland secretions venom components silk structure structure and perception of colours as well as nutritional requirements Spiders are valuable indicator species in agroecosystems and for conservation biology Modern transfer and application technologies research spiders and their products with respect to their value for biomimetics material sciences and the agrochemical and pharmaceutical industries

Ecophysiology of Spiders Wolfgang Nentwig, 2012-12-06 Recently another book on insect physiology was published It was restricted to a few focal points as are many of these new insect physiology books but there was considerable depth in its specialized point of view We were discussing the structure of this book and of insect physiology books in general when Prof Remmert asked me and what about books on spider physiology Silence Then I started to explain oh yes there is a congress proceedings volume on this topic and there is a group with excellent publications on another topic but I felt that this answer was weak One can no longer buy the proceedings volume in a bookshop and to read a series of publications on a given topic one must search in a library for a dozen journals Why is there not a single book on spider physiology comparable with the many books on insect physiology Are spiders a scientific ivory tower far from public interest and commercial importance I do not think so although spiders are one of the many forgotten animal groups which always grew in the shadow of the insects There are research groups working on spider physiology there are fascinating phenomena in this animal group and there are plenty of exciting results Spiders may have been always underresearched but research is progressing In the last few years new books have been published e g Spider Behaviour Marie Elisabeth Herberstein, 2011-01-27 Spiders are often underestimated as suitable behavioural models because of the general belief that due to their small brains their behaviour is innate and mostly invariable Challenging this assumption this fascinating book shows that rather than having a limited behavioural repertoire spiders show surprising cognitive abilities changing their behaviour to suit their situational needs The team of authors unravels the considerable intra specific as well as intra individual variability and plasticity in different behaviours ranging from foraging and web building to communication and courtship An introductory chapter on spider biology systematics and evolution provides the reader with the necessary background information to understand the discussed behaviours and helps to place them into an evolutionary context Highlighting an under explored area of behaviour this book will provide new ideas for behavioural researchers and students unfamiliar with spiders as well as a valuable resource for those already working in this intriguing field Spiders in Ecological Webs David H. Environmental Data Analysis Carsten Dormann, 2020-12-20 Environmental Data Analysis is an introductory statistics textbook for environmental science It covers descriptive inferential and predictive statistics centred on the Generalized Linear Model The key idea behind this book is to approach statistical analyses from the perspective of maximum likelihood essentially treating most analyses as multiple regression problems The reader will be introduced to statistical distributions early on and will learn to deploy models suitable for the data at hand which in environmental science are often not normally distributed To make the initially steep learning curve more manageable each statistical chapter is followed by a walk through in a corresponding R based how to chapter which reviews the theory and applies it to environmental data In this way a coherent and expandable foundation in parametric statistics is laid which can be expanded in advanced courses The content has been field tested in several years of courses on statistics for Environmental Science Geography and Forestry taught at the University of Freiburg
