Britain's First Singles Chart

The growing popularity of the 7" single (originally launched in 1949) dictated the production of a chart detailing the best selling titles in any given week. The first chart was compiled by the New Musical Express, whose staff telephoned a number of record stores nationwide to produce a Top 12 best selling titles list for November 14th 1952 (owing to a number of ties, there were 14 records listed).

This open access book surveys drinking in Britain between the Licensing Act of 1869 and the wartime regulations imposed on alcohol production and consumption after 1914 This was a period marked by the expansion of the drink industry and by increasingly restrictive licensing laws Politics and commerce co existed with moral and medical concerns about drunkenness and combined these factors pushed alcohol consumers into the public spotlight Through an analysis of public and private records medical texts and sociological studies the book investigates the reasons why Victorians and Edwardians consumed alcohol in the ways that they did and explores the ideas about alcohol that circulated in the period This book shows that they had many reasons for purchasing and consuming alcoholic substances and these were driven by broader social cultural medical and commercial factors Although drunkenness may have been the most visible consequence of alcohol consumption it was not the only type of drinking behaviour Alcohol played an important social role in the everyday lives of Victorians and Edwardians where its consumption held many different meanings
