Gibson,John Connell,2016-04-29 Throughout the world the number of festivals has grown exponentially in the last two decades as people celebrate local and regional cultures but perhaps more importantly as local councils and other groups seek to use festivals both to promote tourism and to stimulate rural development However most studies of festivals have tended to focus almost exclusively on the cultural and symbolic aspects or on narrow modelling of economic multiplier impacts rather than examining their long term implications for rural change This book therefore has an original focus It is structured in two parts the first discusses broad issues affecting music festivals globally especially in the context of rural revitalisation The second part looks in more detail at a range of types of festivals commonly found throughout North America Europe and Australasia such as country music jazz opera and alternative music festivals The authors draw on in depth research undertaken over the past five years in a range of Australian places which traces the overall growth of festivals of various kinds examines four of the more important and distinctive music festivals and makes clear conclusions on their significance for rural and regional change

Governing Rural Development Lynda Cheshire, 2016-04-22 In recent decades the responsibility for initiating regeneration programmes has been placed firmly in the hands of rural communities with the rationale being that local people are best placed to know their own problems and consequently to develop their own solutions Despite the popularity of this approach the self help approach has its own problems and can be seen as an attempt by governments to reduce public spending This book provides a critical account of the discourses and practices of self help in contemporary rural development policies of Australia and other western nations Although it examines the problems of the self help approach it moves beyond a straightforward exposition of the impediments to self help Instead taking a Foucauldian governmentality perspective it puts forward a theoretical analysis of the self help concept assessing it as a means of governing rural development in an advanced liberal manner It argues that self help should not be regarded as either the empowerment or the abandonment of rural citizens by a shrinking state but rather the application of new ways of thinking about and acting upon rural development
