The Making Of Modern Society:

The Making of Modern Society Robert A. Nisbet, 1986      A Short History Of Society: The Making Of The Modern World Evans, Mary, 2006-12-01 A brilliant inquiry into culture and society over some seven centuries Mary Evans explores the origins and trajectories of modernity from the Reformation through the Enlightenment to the contemporary period Her intellectual control of complex ideas and diverse forms of evidence is consistently impressive Exploring various pessimistic dystopian strands in European perspectives on modernity by Friedrich Nietzsche Max Weber and Theodor Adorno she defends a balanced view of both the negative and positive consequences of modernization This is historical sociology at its best judicious theoretically informed carefully crafted grounded in empirical research and above all intellectually clever A Short History of Society will prove to be a valuable companion to the student who needs a concise scholarly and sociological overview of modernity Bryan Turner National University of Singapore A Short History of Society is a concise account of the emergence of modern western society It looks at how successive generations have understood and explained the world in which they lived and examines significant events since the Enlightenment that have led to the development of society as we know it today The book spans the period 1500 to the present day and discusses the social world in terms of both its politics and its culture This book is ideal for undergraduate students in the social sciences who are perplexed by the myriad of events and theories with which their courses are concerned and who need a historical perspective on the changes that shaped the contemporary world      Making the Modern World Vaclav Smil, 2013-12-16 How much further should the affluent world push its material consumption Does relative dematerialization lead to absolute decline in demand for materials These and many other questions are discussed and answered in Making the Modern World Materials and Dematerialization Over the course of time the modern world has become dependent on unprecedented flows of materials Now even the most efficient production processes and the highest practical rates of recycling may not be enough to result in dematerialization rates that would be high enough to negate the rising demand for materials generated by continuing population growth and rising standards of living This book explores the costs of this dependence and the potential for substantial dematerialization of modern economies Making the Modern World Materials and Dematerialization considers the principal materials used throughout history from wood and stone through to metals alloys plastics and silicon describing their extraction and production as well as their dominant applications The evolving productivities of material extraction processing synthesis finishing and distribution and the energy costs and environmental impact of rising material consumption are examined in detail The book concludes with an outlook for the future discussing the prospects for dematerialization and potential constraints on materials This interdisciplinary text provides useful perspectives for readers with backgrounds including resource economics environmental studies energy analysis mineral geology industrial organization manufacturing and material science

Making of Modern Korea Cherl-Ho Lee, 2024-05-29 This handbook offers an updated and comprehensive presentation of knowledge on Korean modern and contemporary food history. It covers the changes in food availability, nutrition, and the health status of Koreans and the Korean food industry's development from the late period of Joseon dynasty in the mid 19th century to the present. This period includes the severe poverty and food shortage of the Joseon dynasty followed by the Japanese invasion, Independence, and the South-North division, the Korean war, and rapid industrial development. The influence of national and international environments and political changes during the last 150 years on the Korean food security and the nutritional situation of the people is demarcated. In doing so, the author makes novel suggestions on possible contributions to alleviate the world food crisis in the future. Relevant to food historians and food scientists and East Asian studies scholars with a particular interest in Korean culture and history, this is a pioneering work that elucidates the driving forces for the development and betterment of Korean society through food acquisition.

The Middle East and the Making of the Modern World Cyrus Schayegh, 2017-08-28 How do historians make sense of the spatial layeredness of the past? Cyrus Schayegh argues that the modern world's ultimate socio-spatial feature is not the oft-studied processes of globalization or state formation or urbanization but rather the fast-paced mutually transformative intertwinements of cities, regions, states, and global circuits.

The Great War and the Making of the Modern World Jeremy Black, 2011-03-17 This new work demonstrates how the outcome of the First World War has formed the modern world we live in today. The First World War was the Great War for its leading participants. In revisiting the events of 1914-1918, a century on, Jeremy Black considers how we now look at the impact of the conflict across the globe and how it came to be World War I in our consciousness. For millions, both soldiers and civilians, the conflict proved fatal. The suffering and loss of the war provides much of its resonance and significance, but this book seeks to throw light beyond this, not least in asking how it ended in victory and defeat. Casting aside the conventional narrative, Jeremy Black returns to a vast range of original sources and investigates not only the key events of the war but its consequences in restructuring the old order. As its significance has changed with time and not only with the loss of first-hand testimony, Black considers the struggle not only in its historical context but through its memorialisation today.
