Molecular Evolution and Adaptive Radiation Thomas J. Givnish, Kenneth J. Sytsma, 2000-05-08 This volume surveys advances in the study of adaptive radiation showing how molecular characters can be used to analyze the origin and pattern of diversification within a lineage in a non circular fashion

Heterochrony in Evolution Michael L. McKinney, 2013-11-21 an adult poet is simply an individual in a state of arrested development in brief a sort of moron Just as all of us in utero pass through a stage in which we are tadpoles so all of us pass through a state in our nonage when we are poets A youth of seventeen who is not a poet is simply a donkey his development has been arrested even anterior to that of the tadpole But a man of fifty who still writes poetry is either an unfortunate who has never developed intellectually beyond his teens or a conscious buffoon who pretends to be something he isn t something far younger and juicier than he actually is H 1 Mencken High and Ghostly Matters Prejudices Fourth Series 1924 Where would evolution be Without this thing heterochrony M L McKinney 1987 One of the joys of working in a nascent field is that it is actually possible to keep up with the literature So it is with mixed emotions that we heterochronists even larval forms like myself view the recent veritable explosion of interest in heterochrony in Gould's words in this volume On the positive side it is obviously necessary and desirable to extend and expand the inquiry but one regrets that already we are beginning to talk past lose track of and even ignore each other as we carve out individual interests

Current Mammalogy H.H. Genoways, 2013-06-29 When I first proposed a series entitled Current Mammalogy to the publishers they were reluctant to undertake such a project because they viewed the field of mammalogy as overly fragmented At first I found this idea to be difficult to accept however upon reflection I came near to agreeing with it Although many of us work on mammals we generally feel more allegiance to our specialties such as systematics genetics cytogenetics ecology behavior pest control paleontology wildlife management primatology and marine mammalogy than we do to the general field of mammalogy

However rather than becoming discouraged from pursuing this project I became more certain than ever that a series such as Current Mammalogy was needed We hope to make this series a place where specialists can present their ideas not only to other members of their specialty but to those outside the area as well Hopefully this exchange of ideas will be a mutually beneficial exercise The Editorial Board of Current Mammalogy has decided to keep the range of subjects in each volume as broad as possible rather than concentrating on one or two topics in the hope that this will keep the series as useful as possible to the broadest range of readers

Large Herbivore Ecology, Ecosystem Dynamics and Conservation Kjell Danell, Roger Bergström, Patrick Duncan, John Pastor, 2006-05-25 Most large herbivores require some type of management within their habitats Some populations of large herbivores are at the brink of extinction some are under discussion for reintroduction whilst others already occur in dense populations causing conflicts with other land use Large herbivores are the major drivers for forming the shape and function of terrestrial ecosystems This 2006 book addresses the scientifically based action plans to manage both the large herbivore populations and their habitats worldwide It covers the processes by which large herbivores not only affect their environment e g grazing but are affected by it e g nutrient cycling and the management strategies required Also discussed are new modeling techniques which help assess integration processes in a landscape context as well as assessing the consequences of new developments in the processes of conservation This book will be essential reading for all involved in the management of both large herbivores and natural resources

Functional Inference in Paleoanthropology David J. Daegling, 2022-01-04 In this deep examination of functional morphology a renowned paleoanthropologist offers a new way to investigate human evolution through the fossil record It is common for two functional anatomists to examine the exact same fossil material yet argue over its evolutionary significance How can this be Traditionally paleoanthropology has interpreted hominin fossil morphology by first considering the ecological challenges hominins faced then drawing adaptive inferences based on the idea that skeletal morphology is largely a reflection of paleoecology In Functional Inference in Paleoanthropology innovative paleoanthropologist David J Daegling suggests that researchers can resolve dichotomous interpretations of the fossil record by instead focusing on the biology and development of the bones themselves such as measurable responses to deformations stresses and damage Critically exploring how scientists probe and interpret fossil morphology for behavioral and adaptive inferences Daegling makes the case that an intelligible science of functional morphology in the fossil record is impossible without the inclusion of this mechanobiological perspective Drawing on historical examples from long standing debates on the emergence of bipedality and the dietary shifts that facilitated the emergence of the hominin clade Daegling traces the disjunctions between theoretical principles of comparative morphology and methodological practice in the paleontological context of human evolution Sharing rich findings from recent decades of research in skeletal biomechanics Functional Inference in Paleoanthropology examines how bone adapts over the lifespan what environmental factors influence its quality and how developmental constraints limit the
