Appel,Audrey B. Davis,2019-12-02 The anthology Bloodletting Instruments in the National Museum of History and Technology weaves through the intricate history of medical practices with a focus on the tools that shaped them This collection captures the evolution of medical understanding and technological innovation in bloodletting a practice once heralded for its therapeutic promises The compendium features a confluence of narratives and essays that encompass meticulous descriptions of diverse bloodletting devices from the rustic and rudimentary lancets of antiquity to the mechanically sophisticated scarificators of the 19th century Such artifacts are not just historical relics but profound entries into the medical ethos of their time offering a compelling exploration into the interplay between culture and medicine Editors Toby A Appel and Audrey B Davis bring together a distinguished gathering of contributors whose expertise spans history technology and medicine Their curated work synchronizes with historical and scientific movements providing a panoramic view of medical progression viewed through the lens of bloodletting instruments This anthology unites voices that illuminate the intersections between technological advancement and medical practice creating a dialogue that transcends time and space reflecting on past medical traditions while informing present day practices and ideologies This collection is an invaluable resource for historians medical practitioners and anyone intrigued by the evolution of medical instruments Readers are extended an invitation to journey through these pages to unravel the diverse narratives and insights offered by each contributor providing a deep educational experience into historical medical practices With its rich tapestry of perspectives and thematic depth this anthology heralds a unique opportunity to understand the symbiotic relationship between technology culture and medicine      The household encyclopædia; or, Family dictionary of everything connected with housekeeping and domestic medicine, by an association of heads of families and men of science Household encyclopaedia,1859      The Illustrated Natural History Wood,1863      The Illustrated Natural History John George Wood,1863      The Living Age ,1854      Coding Properties in Invertebrate Sensory Systems Sylvia Anton,Anders Garm,Berthold G. Hedwig,2017-03-07 Animals rely on sensory input from their environment for survival and reproduction Depending on the importance of a signal for a given species accuracy of sensory coding might vary from pure detection up to precise coding of intensity quality and temporal features of the signal Highly sophisticated sense organs and related central nervous sensory pathways can be of utmost importance for animals in a complex environment and when using advanced communication systems In sensory systems different anatomical and physiological features have evolved to optimally encode

behaviourally relevant signals at the level of sense organs and central processing The wide range of organizational complexity in combination with their relatively simple and accessible nervous systems makes invertebrates excellent models to study general sensory coding principles The contributions to this e book illustrate on one hand particular features of specific sensory systems and on the other hand indicate not only common features of sensory coding across invertebrate phyla but also similar processing principles of complex stimuli between different sensory modalities The chapters show that the extraction of behaviourally relevant signals from all environmental stimuli as well as the detection of low intensity signals and the analysis of temporal features can be similar across sensory modalities including olfaction vision mechanoreception and heat perception
