

SLIPS OF TONGUE AND PSYCHOLINGUISTICS

In Psycholinguistics tongue slips are one kind of speech errors which are regarded mostly as errors of articulation.

Serendre Shutter in 2004 stated that:

It is a complicated mental processing which is happening entirely below the level of consciousness, so we're not aware of doing anything except when we hear ourselves saying something funny, and its all happening at such lighting speed that we're not aware of any time these steps are taking.

Slips Of The Tongue:

Slips of the Tongue Nanda Poulisse, 1999-01-01 This book reports the results of an extensive study of slips of the tongue produced by foreign language L2 learners at different levels of proficiency. Thus it provides new data which can be used to test current monolingual models of speech production and to further the development of bilingual speech production models. Moreover, it offers a new approach to the study of second language acquisition. The book contains a detailed survey of the findings of L1 slip research, including studies of slips produced by child L1 learners. It systematically compares these findings to those of the current L2 study and relates them to recent monolingual and bilingual models of speech production and to several cognitive models of second language acquisition. Special features of the book are its emphasis on methodological problems and the inclusion of the complete L2 corpus of 2000 slips of the tongue. It is expected that the book will be of interest to researchers and advanced students in the areas of speech production and second language acquisition and particularly to those who would like to test their own hypotheses using the L2 data. Summary of the contents of the book: The book provides an overview of the key findings in L1 slip research. It relates L1 findings to monolingual speech production models. It gives a detailed survey of studies of slips produced by children. It presents an up-to-date review of bilingual speech production models. It discusses recent cognitive models of second language acquisition. It gives a detailed description of an extensive research project on slips of the tongue produced by Dutch learners of English. The L2 slip corpus is tape-recorded. It discusses methodological problems in L1 slip research. It systematically compares the L1 findings to those of the L2 slip project. It relates the findings to monolingual and bilingual models of speech production and to cognitive models of second language acquisition. It makes the data available in the appendix.

Maria Dziekonska, 2012-01-14 Seminar paper from the year 2009 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies / Linguistics, grade 1.3 University of Heidelberg / Anglistisches Seminar course: Slips of the tongue language: English abstract: Whenever people fail to utter the message they wanted to convey correctly, they apologize and tend to explain their accidental mistake as a slip of the tongue. However, what is meant and covered by this term, which is used so often to refer to speech errors, does its universality suggest that all tongue slips are of the same kind? If not, how can they be distinguished? This term paper will try to give a more detailed categorization of speech anomalies, first providing a definition of what is generally seen as a slip of the tongue. It will be shown who were the first linguists to examine this topic and what discoveries were made. In order to give an own precise classification of speech errors, different approaches for main categorizations will be presented and taken into consideration. On the basis of these main categories, further sub-categories are elaborated and illustrated with examples given by different authors in order to explain every feature appropriately. Since many authors still do not agree upon a common sub-classification, this term paper will select the most suitable terms and definitions, try to compromise about the most common ones, and give suggestions for further distinctions. To be conforming to the majority of the literature, the most common terminology shall be used However if provided terms are inappropriate or imprecise they will be modified The types of speech errors will be ordered via the main class they belong to They will be presented as sub classes defined explained and illustrated by examples in detail Examples are marked with ordinals The incorrect utterance is always presented with an asterisk and followed by the proper realization in brackets The pronunciation of the slips is written in graphemes i e normally w an Emeritus Professorial Fellow at Worcester College Oxford She is the author of numerous books on language and gave the 1996 BBC Reith lectures on the topic of The Language Web Language and Social Situations Joseph P. Forgas, 2012-12-06

Most of our interactions with others occur within the framework of recurring social situations and the language choices we make are intimately tied to situational features Although the interdependence between language and social situations has been well recognized at least since G H Mead developed his symbolic interactionist theory psychologists have been reluctant to devote much interest to this domain until recently Yet it is arguable that a detailed understanding of the subtle links between situational features and language use must lie at the heart of any genuinely social psychology This volume contains original contributions from psychologists linguists and philosophers from the United States Canada Europe Israel and Australia who share an interest in the social psychological aspects of language Their work represents one of the first concentrated attempts to chart the possibilities of this exciting field It is perhaps in order to say a few words about the origins of this book The need for a volume integrating research on language and social situations first emerged during the 2nd International Conference of Language and Social Psychology at Bristol University in 1983 at which I was convening a symposium with a similar title at the request of the organizers Peter Robinson and Howard Giles When they first approached me with this idea in 1982 I gladly accepted since my own research on cognitive representations of social episodes seemed eminently relevant to a symposium on language and social situations
