Tensioned Fabric Roof:

Architectural Fabric Structures National Research Council (U.S.). Advisory Board on the Built Environment, 1985 This reprint of the 1985 architectural classic discusses a technology that offers an important alternative to conventional construction having unique properties that make it useful for certain applications Due to improvements in materials structural analysis and environmental control these structures can often be considered permanent buildings The membrane is the principal structural component of a tensioned fabric structure Under certain circumstances a tensioned fabric structure can reduce energy consumption in a building The natural light from the translucent surface reduces requirements for artificial lighting the reflectivity of the skin reduces heat gain and the radiation of waste heat from the warm fabric surface to cool sky results in an energy efficient building in warm climates In cold climates a second skin or liner is often used often with glass fiber insulation in the cavity to further reduce heat loss In general as permanent structures tensioned fabric technology is underutilized There are many projects or parts of projects that could employ this system The Tensioned Fabric Roof Craig G. Huntington, 2004 Written by an experienced practitioner of fabric structure design this book methodically addresses all aspects of the design and construction process Structural engineers will gain an understanding of shaping analysis and design of members and connections architects will learn the possibilities and limitations in fabric roof form as well as the means of achieving successful energy lighting acoustical and fire safety performance the contractors will gain invaluable information related to their fabrication and erection Design of a Tensioned Fabric Roof Richard R. Bradshaw, 1992 Tensioned fabric roof structures, 2001 Tensioned Fabric Structures Ronald E. Shaeffer, 1996

The Good House Book Clarke Snell, 2004 A guide to building an eco friendly energy efficient and sustainable house that is in harmony with the local climate and site Widespan Roof Structures Michael Barnes, Michael Dickson, 2000 Presents world thinking on the design and construction of large covered spaces This book aims to offer insights into many of the innovative construction design projects It explores the advances within stressed membrane roofing atria and glass structures with a focus on international developments It also addresses the problems of construction Integrated Buildings Leonard R. Bachman, 2004-01-27 An anatomical study of building systems integration with guidelines for practical applications Through a systems approach to buildings Integrated Buildings The Systems Basis of Architecture details the practice of integration to bridge the gap between the design intentions and technical demands of building projects Analytic methods are introduced that illustrate the value benefit and application of systems integration as well as guidelines for selecting technical systems in the conceptual schematic and design development stages of projects Landmark structures such as Eero Saarinen s John Deere Headquarters Renzo Piano s Kansai International Airport Glenn Murcutt s Magney House and Richard Rogers s Lloyd s of London headquarters are presented as part of an extensive collection of case studies organized into seven categories Laboratories Offices Pavilions Green Architecture High Tech Architecture Airport Terminals

Residential Architecture Advanced material is provided on methods of integration including an overview of integration topics the systems basis of architecture and the integration potential of various building systems An expanded case study of Ibsen Nelsen s design for the Pacific Museum of Flight is used to demonstrate case study methods for tracing integration through any work of architecture Visually enhanced with more than 300 illustrations diagrams and photographs Integrated Buildings The Systems Basis of Architecture is a valuable reference guide for architecture and civil engineering students as well as architects engineers and other professionals in the construction industry Biaxial Testing for Fabrics and Foils Paolo Beccarelli,2015-01-30 This book offers a well structured critical review of current design practice for tensioned membrane structures including a detailed analysis of the experimental data required and critical issues relating to the lack of a set of design codes and testing procedures The technical requirements for biaxial testing equipment are analyzed in detail and aspects that need to be considered when developing biaxial testing procedures are emphasized The analysis is supported by the results of a round robin exercise comparing biaxial testing machines that involved four of the main research laboratories in the field The biaxial testing devices and procedures presently used in Europe are extensively discussed and information is provided on the design and implementation of a biaxial testing rig for architectural fabrics at Politecnico di Milano which represents a benchmark in the field The significance of the most recent developments in biaxial testing is also explored

Wind Loading of Structures John D. Holmes,Seifu Bekele,2020-12-08 Wind forces from extreme wind events are the dominant loading for many parts of the world exacerbated by climate change and the continued construction of tall buildings and structures This authoritative source for practising and academic structural engineers and graduate students ties the principles of wind loads on structures to the relevant aspects of meteorology bluff body aerodynamics probability and statistics and structural dynamics This new edition covers Climate change effects on extreme winds particularly those from tropical cyclones hurricanes and typhoons Modelling of potential wind vulnerability and damage Developments in extreme value probability analysis of extreme wind speeds and directions Explanation of the difference between return period and average recurrence interval as well as bootstrapping techniques for deriving confidence limits Wind over water and profiles and turbulence in non synoptic winds An expanded chapter on internal pressures produced by wind for various opening and permeability scenarios Aerodynamic shaping of high and low rise buildings Recent developments in five major wind codes and standards A new chapter on computational fluid dynamics CFD as applied to wind engineering A greatly expanded appendix providing the basic information on extreme wind climates for over 140 countries and territories Additional examples for many chapters in this book Fabric Structures in Architecture J Llorens,2015-03-28 Fabric Structures in Architecture covers the varying ways textiles and their properties are used in building construction with particular focus given to tensile structures The text begins with the fundamental principles of textiles including the origins of fabric architecture then progressing to a discussion of the modern textiles of today It covers relevant textile materials and their properties including coatings and membranes In addition a range of design considerations are discussed with detailed information on installation and failure modes A series of case studies from around the world accompany the discussion illustrating the applications of textiles in architecture Offers key coverage of the fundamental principles from the origins of fabric architecture to modern textile Provides analysis of relevant textile materials and their properties including coatings and membranes Contains expert insights in to the applications of textiles in architecture presenting a series of relevant case studies from around the world

Lewis,2003 The tension structures discussed in this book are predominantly roofing forms created from pre stressed cable nets cable trusses and continuous membranes fabric structures A unique feature in their design is form finding an interactive process of defining the shape of a structure under tension The book discusses the role of stable minimal surfaces minimum energy forms occurring in natural objects such as soap films in finding optimal shapes of membrane and cable structures The discussion of form finding is extended to structural forms whose shape is supposedly known such as suspension bridge cables

Wind Engineering J. E. Cermak,2013-10-02 Wind Engineering is a compendium of papers from the Fifth International Conference on Wind Engineering held in Colorado USA on July 8 14 1979 Papers discuss the social and economic impact of wind storms particularly the need for improvement in decision making in building construction development of design and construction criteria for low income housing Other papers describe snow management and microzonation studies to quantify with better precision the probabilities used in decision models Some papers describe localized wind environments and wind loading fluctuating internal fluctuating external Other papers analyze the dynamic response of tall buildings and towers such as in crosswinds wind direction alongwind and wind action with interference effects from similar surrounding buildings Experiments show that by properly modeling a structure in a boundary layer wind tunnel the investigator can obtain results which are dynamically fully comparable to a full scale situation Another paper discusses the recommendations of the European Convention for Constructional Steelwork in calculating the wind effects on buildings and structures The compendium can be appreciated by environmentalist civil engineers structural engineers architects physicists students and professors of meteorology Architectural Fabric Structures National Research Council,2002-12-01 This reprint of the 1985 architectural classic discusses a technology that offers an important alternative to conventional construction having unique properties that make it useful for certain applications Due to improvements in materials structural analysis and environmental control these structures can often be considered permanent buildings The membrane is the principal structural component of a tensioned fabric structure Under certain circumstances a tensioned fabric structure can reduce energy consumption in a building The natural light from the translucent surface reduces requirements for artificial lighting the reflectivity of the skin reduces heat gain and the radiation of waste heat from the warm fabric surface to cool sky results in an energy efficient building in warm climates In cold climates a second skin or liner is often used often with glass fiber insulation in the cavity to further reduce heat loss In general as permanent structures tensioned fabric technology is
