The Mammalian Circulation:

The Mammalian Circulation Eric Neil, 1975 The Heart and Circulation Branko Furst, 2013-08-13 This book traces the development of the basic concepts in cardiovascular physiology in the light of the accumulated experimental and clinical evidence and rather than making the findings fit the standard pressure propulsion mold let the phenomena speak for themselves It starts by considering the early embryonic circulation where blood passes through the valveless tube heart at a rate that surpasses the contractions of its walls suggesting that the blood is not propelled by the heart but possesses its own motive force tightly coupled to the metabolic demands of the tissues Rather than being an organ of propulsion the heart on the contrary serves as a damming up organ generating pressure by rhythmically impeding the flow of blood The validity of this model is then confirmed by comparing the key developmental stages of the cardiovascular system in the invertebrates the insects and across the vertebrate taxa The salient morphological and histological features of the myocardium are reviewed with particular reference to the vortex The complex energy dissipating intracardiac flow patterns likewise suggest that the heart functions as an organ of impedance whose energy consumption closely matches the generated pressure but not its throughput Attention is then turned to the regulation of cardiac output and to the arguments advanced by proponents of the left ventricular and of the venous return models of circulation Hyperdynamic states occurring in arteriovenous fistulas and congenital heart defects where communication exists between the systemic and pulmonary circuits at the level of atria or the ventricles demonstrate that once the heart is unable to impede the flow of blood reactive changes occur in the pulmonary and systemic circulations leading to pulmonary hypertension and Eisenmenger syndrome Finally the key points of the book are summarized in the context of blood as a liquid organ with autonomous movement Comparative Cardiovascular

Dynamics of Mammals John K-J Li, 2024-11-01 Comparative Cardiovascular Dynamics of Mammals offers never before published data on the structure and function of the circulatory systems of the different mammalian species This text explores classic allometry dimensional analysis and modern hemodynamics to establish similarity principles that provide a necessary and important step in understanding the natural common design and functional features of the cardiovascular systems of different mammals Fluid and blood vessel mechanics pulse transmission characteristics cardiac energetics and mechanics as well as heart arterial system interaction are included in this essential reference The sensitivity of parameters and similarity of principles in the diagnosis of cardiovascular diseases are also addressed This book also describes the natural processes involved in the functional development of the mammalian cardiovascular system By using modern methods to present recent findings on the similarities and differences of the mammalian cardiovascular system the author provides an easily understood approach to this dynamic field of study Advanced Biology Michael Roberts, Michael Reiss, Grace Monger, 2000 The major new course text has been written by experienced authors to provide coverage of the Advanced Subsidiary AS and Advanced GCE Biology and Human Biology specifications in a single book Advanced Biology provides clear well illustrated information which will help develop a full understanding of biological structure and function and of relevant applications The topics have been carefully organised into parts which give a logical sequence to the book This new text has been developed to replace the best selling titles Biology Principles and Processes and Biology A Functional Approach Features include full colour design with clear diagrams and photographs up to date information on biotechnology health applied genetics and ecology clearly written text using the latest Institute of Biology terminology a useful summary and a bank of practice questions at the end of every chapter support boxes help bridge the gap from GCSE or equivalent courses extension boxes providing additional depth of content some by guest authors who are experts in their field and a comprehensive index so you can quickly locate information with ease There is also a website providing additional support that you can access directly at www.advancedbiology.co.uk

Mammalogy Terry Vaughan, James Ryan, Nicholas Czaplewski, 2011-04-21 Newly revised and extensively updated the fifth edition of Mammalogy explains and clarifies the subject of mammalian biology as a unified whole taking care to discuss the latest and most fascinating discoveries in the field In recent years we witnessed significant changes in the taxonomy of mammals The authors kept pace with such changes and revised each chapter to reflect the most current data and statistics available New pedagogical elements including chapter outlines lists of key morphological characteristics and further reading sections help readers grasp the most important concepts and explore additional content on their own Book Jacket

Circulation in Fishes G. H. Satchell, 1971-02-02 This 1971 monograph presents a coherent account of the circulatory function in fish

The Lung Circulation Domingo M. Aviado, 2013-10-22 The Lung Circulation deals with important aspects of the lung circulation with emphasis on the physiology of the pulmonary and bronchial circulation and autonomic pharmacology Topics covered range from the role of anoxia in pulmonary circulation to reflexes arising from the pulmonary circulation and neighboring structures The release of chemical substances from the pulmonary and bronchial circulation is also discussed This volume is comprised of 10 chapters and begins with a review of the influence of anoxia on pulmonary circulation as well as four pertinent effects of anoxemia namely respiratory stimulation cardiac stimulation systemic vasoconstriction and vasodilatation and pulmonary vasoconstriction and vasodilatation The following chapters focus on the regulation of bronchial circulation autonomic nervous control of pulmonary circulation involving acetylcholine anticholinesterases and atropine and the pharmacology of sympathomimetic drugs sympathetic blocking drugs ganglion stimulants and blocking drugs The final chapter is devoted to the pharmacology of the autonomic nervous system and considers drugs that stimulate chemoreflexes arising from the lung circulation including veratrum alkaloids This book will appeal to physiologists and pharmacologists
