each agency and found out what has happened since our original studies adding a postscript to each outlining the main developments since the original research ten to twenty years ago I don't think anyone has ever done that before In most cases the innovating trends we identified have gone further often becoming national orthodoxy by now The one on legal aid where unexpected developments have occurred is at least as interesting Professor Donnison has added a ninth case study of the Department of Social Administration at the London School of Economics where he was working when the original studies were made Professor Richard Titmuss was head of the department at that time This study traces the development of education for social workers at a seminal stage and the difficult problems which had to be resolved when major new departures occurred in this field The chapter will be of lasting interest to historians of social work and social work education in Britain besides throwing light on the process of innovation in social policy
