Origins of Mass Communications Research During the American Cold War Timothy Glander, 1999-12-01 In this critical examination of the beginnings of mass communications research in the United States written from the perspective of an educational historian Timothy Glander uses archival materials that have not been widely studied to document contextualize and interpret the dominant expressions of this field during the time in which it became rooted in American academic life and tries to give articulation to the larger historical forces that gave the field its fundamental purposes By mid century mass communications researchers had become recognized as experts in describing the effects of the mass media on learning and other social behavior However the conditions that promoted and sustained their authority as experts have not been adequately explored This study analyzes the ideological and historical forces giving rise to and shaping their research Until this study the history of communications research has been written almost entirely from within the field of communications studies and as a result has tended to refrain from asking troubling foundational questions about the origins of the field or to entertain how its emergence shaped educational discourse during the post World War II period By examining the intersection between the individual biographies of key leaders in the communications field Wilbur Schramm Paul Lazarsfeld Bernard Berelson Hadley Cantril Stuart Dodd and others and the larger historical context in which they lived and worked this book aims to tell part of the story of how the field of communications became divorced from the field of education The book also examines the work of significant voices on the rise of mass communications study including C Wright Mills William W Biddle Paul Goodman and others who theorized about the emergence of a mass society It concludes with a discussion of the contemporary relevance of the theory of a mass society to educational thought and practice

Young Adult Reader's Adviser Marion Sader,1992-01-30 The best in literature and language arts mathematics and computer science      Sociological Abstracts Leo P. Chall,2004 CSA Sociological Abstracts abstracts and indexes the international literature in sociology and related disciplines in the social and behavioral sciences The database provides abstracts of journal articles and citations to book reviews drawn from over 1 800 serials publications and also provides abstracts of books book chapters dissertations and conference papers      Anti-Racism and Multiculturalism Mark D. Alleyne,2011-12-31 All scholarly books are engagements with the existing literature often the published scholarly work of one established discipline This book originated with modest objectives to produce a work that would be in conversation with the literature of international relations even though not of relevance only to that field The professed goal of international relations is international peace The ethical lens of pondering the best means to achieve world peace is used to filter media content in the field of multiculturalism and anti racism Although there has been little work on the impact of racial difference on the contours of contemporary international order there has been a sizeable body of research intended to abolish the credibility of pseudo scientific racism Such racism has provided the ideological foundation and justification for imperialism colonialism the holocaust and apartheid Race has been debunked as a myth Because of this racism the ideology bred of human classification according to racial difference has been found to be intellectually and morally barren But the need to communicate egalitarian and scientific sentiments remains. The contributors to this volume consider five questions: How does the literature on anti-racism improve our understanding of conflict resolution? How does the analysis of the media's role in racist and anti-racist discourses improve the process of theorizing on hate and war propaganda? How can research on anti-racist discourse improve UN peacekeeping? What implications does this subject have for theory building and cultural diversity? How and why should the literature on anti-racism expand research in international relations? This is a unique, worthwhile framework for cross-disciplinary research in race and intellectual consensus and conflict.
