

What is the social construction of childhood?

- The idea is that what we know as childhood isn't an absolute truth which has always been around and is the same everywhere
- Instead, sociologists argue childhood is an idea which has been built (constructed) over time

Social Construction Of Educational Leade:

The Social Construction of Educational Leadership Anna Hicks McFadden, Penny Smith, 2004 Most historical and theoretical work on school administration choice has focused on the importance of race and class with increased attention to gender during the past two decades Rarely has geography been a consideration and when it appears at all it is used only to distinguish the unique conditions of urban school settings The Social Construction of Educational Leadership Southern Appalachian Ceilings addresses decisions about who is chosen to lead public schools and how they do it Using their research on senior level public school leaders in the southern mountains of North Carolina as a representative case study the authors construct an argument for a reconsideration of the role of place both in decisions about who becomes a school leader and in how those leaders behave professionally The authors describe the changes in a leadership system grounded in race class geographic and gender preferences that dating back to colonial systems of deference describing the pattern of those changes and exploring their implications for school leadership and the preparation of prospective leaders in the region and elsewhere

Critical Perspectives On

Educational Leadership John Smyth, 2005-08-12 This book is an edited collection of original papers which challenge in a very direct manner the dominant behaviourist and functionalist views that have come to entrap those who live work and conduct research in the areas of educational leadership and focusing instead on the structures and processes within schools as organisations that frustrate distort and ultimately stifle educative relationships the writers provide a much needed way of reconceptualising both thought and action in so called acts of educational leadership

International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration Kenneth A. Leithwood, Judith Chapman, P. Corson, P. Hallinger, Ann Hart, 2012-12-06 EDITORS This introduction to the International Handbook of Educational Leadership and Administration describes some of the motivation for developing the book and several assumptions on which is based much of the work represented in its 31 chapters A synopsis of the contents of those chapters is also provided SOME KEY ASSUMPTIONS It is sometimes suggested that the search for an adequate understanding of leadership is doomed to fail After all there is little evidence of agreement about the concept in spite of prodigious efforts dating back hundreds if not thousands of years Such a view is captured for example in Bennis observation that Of all the hazy and confounding areas in social psychology leadership theory undoubtedly contends for top nomination Probably more has been written and less is known about leadership than any other topic in the behavioural sciences 1959 page 259 We do not find this state of affairs discouraging nor entirely accurate and of course it did not prevent Bennis from proceeding either One reason for our desire to continue in the face of such discouraging words is that a great deal of leadership research aspires to develop a general theory a theory which applies to all or most domains of organized human activity This aspiration inevitably produces decontextualized and therefore abstract categories of practice Howard Gardner's 1995 depiction of leadership as story telling is a case in point

Leithwood et al was published in 1996 and quickly became something of a best seller for reference works within education Such success we suggest was at least partly due to the unprecedented global waves of concern for improving schools launched in the mid 1980 s combined with a widespread belief in leadership as the single most powerful contribution to such improvement The roots of this belief can be found in evidence produced by the early effective schools research although there is a romance with leadership as an explanation for success in many non school enterprises as well During the two year period during which this current handbook was being written activity in the realms of school leadership school improvement and leadership development gained further momentum The English government created its new National College of School Leadership and several Asian nations announced new initiatives in leadership selection preparation and development

Educational Leadership Relationally Scott Eacott, 2015-01-19 Educational leadership management and administration has a rich history of epistemological and ontological dialogue and debate However in recent times at least since the publication of Colin Evers and Gabriele Lakowski's trilogy knowing exploring and doing educational administration there has been a distinct dearth Educational Leadership Relationally explicitly returns matters of epistemology and ontology to the centre of the discussion Through a sustained and rigorous engagement with contemporary thought and analysis Scott Eacott articulates and defends a relational approach to scholarship in educational leadership management and administration Eacott belongs to a group of scholars in educational administration who could be called meta sociologist This group blends sociology historical revisionism managerial theories and general philosophy to emphasise the relevance of sociological analysis in the field of educational administration Proposing a relational turn Eacott outlines a methodological agenda for constructing an alternative approach to educational leadership management and administration scholarship that might be persuasive beyond the critical frontier The relational research programme is arguably the most ambitious agenda in educational leadership management and administration coming out of Australia since Colin Evers and Gabriele Lakomski s natural coherentism and Richard Bates Critical Theory of Educational Administration As a research agenda it engages with the centrality of administration in constructions of the social world the legitimation of popular labels such as leadership the inexhaustible and inseparable grounding of administrative labour in time and space and overcomes contemporary tensions of individualism collectivism and structure agency to provide a productive rather than merely critical space to theorise educational leadership management and administration
