Cheever ,1990 Figurally Colored Narration Wolf Schmid,2022-04-04 Figurally colored narration FCN is narrator s discourse whether in the first or third person that adopts salient features of character s text mainly valuation and designation without signaling the figural part in any way Unlike free indirect discourse FCN does not refer to current acts of consciousness but to typical characteristic segments of the character's text. There are two main modes of FCN: contagion of the narrator's discourse with a character's text and the more or less ironical reproduction of a character's text in narrative discourse. In the latter case the narrator's criticism may refer to either the content of the character's text or to its form of expression. This study begins with a definition and an example of FCN as a narrative device followed by an analysis of terms used for FCN in German Anglophone and Russian literary criticism. Building on the perception of FCN as a phenomenon of interference between narrator's and character's text, text interference, this book analyses the function and applications of FCN in narratives written in German, English and Russian. Quick Writes

This is the first collection of articles devoted entirely to less translated languages, a term that brings together well-known, widely used languages such as Arabic or Chinese and long-neglected minority languages with power as the key word at play. It starts with some views on English, the dominant language in Translation, as elsewhere considers the role of translation for minority languages, both a source of inequality and a means to overcome it takes a look at translation from less translated major languages and cultures and ends up with a closer look at translation into Catalan a paradigmatic case of less translated language in a final section that includes a vindication of six prominent Catalan translators Combining sound theoretical insight and accurate analysis of relevant case studies the contributors to this collection make a convincing case for a more thorough examination of less translated languages within the field of Translation Studies
