CareerBliss compiled this list using reviews submitted by professionals between October 2013 and October 2014. Workers were asked to rate their jobs on 10 factors that affect work happiness on a five-point scale: one's relationship with one's boss and coworkers; workplace environment; job resources; compensation; growth opportunities; company culture; company reputation; daily tasks; and job control over the work performed on a daily basis. CareerBliss combined those numbers to find an average rating of overall happiness for each respondent and sorted the results by education requirements to determine the happiest jobs that don't require a college degree. Each job title had at least 10 reviews.

I Really Wanna Go Home Raymond J. Radner, 2011-09-14 Young World War II veteran George Edwards needs a drink all the time Although it is a new year 1952 in New York City George's life remains the same As he centers his daily routine around a whiskey bottle George begins to drive both himself and his devoted wife Margie straight into the depths of destitution George is bitter Once he was a star ballplayer with lofty goals but his dreams have been shattered by the injuries he suffered while serving in North Africa Now George entertains himself by insulting others including Margie a devoted Catholic who is torn between the demands of her faith and the need to escape the verbal abuse she endures daily Desperate for love and attention she somehow finds herself in bed with Doc Hayden But even though George is a drunk he is no fool Now it appears that the only way George and Margie will ever survive is to go their separate ways Really Wanna Go Home is the compelling tale of a young couples struggle to escape poverty and the effects of a debilitating disease destined to transport both on distinct journeys that soon meet in a catastrophic collision with destiny Inside track, Succeeding in Exams and Assessments Eddie Blass,2013-09-19

The Making of Elite Women Tanja Müller,2021-11-29 This book is a thorough study about the upcoming of elite women in Eritrea encompassing the time of the armed struggle for liberation as well as its aftermath up to the tenth anniversary of Eritrean independence in 2001 and beyond It is a multi disciplinary study combining a comprehensive analysis of Eritrean history society and political developments with extensive case study research into the lives of different groups of elite women Modernisation processes created by the Eritrean revolution fostered an environment in which women are regarded as equal and encouraged to occupy positions of leadership At the same time the revolution's hegemonic ideology does not envisage women opting out of its version of modernity thus new avenues open up only for those who subscribe to the revolution's narrative of progress Furthermore it is argued that while the Eritrean revolution played a decisive role in opening up possibilities for women's emancipation a failure to implement democratic structures of governance puts the revolution's societal achievements at risk its legacy might well rest with possibilities of personal liberation in individual lives

Agricultural Libraries Information Notes ,1989-04 What African American Parents Want Educators to Know Gail L. Thompson,2003-05-30 Thompson designed an empirical study to gather feedback from African American parents on numerous issues pertaining to their children's schooling experiences The results discussed in this book can be utilized to improve the schooling experiences of African American children nationwide The African American parents/guardians who participated in this study were biological parents in two parent homes single parents grandparents foster parents and stepparents who were rearing school age children Some had been deterred from completing their own formal education as a result of peer pressure temptation outside of school or stressful circumstances Others had positive schooling experiences and stable childhoods Regardless of the differences in their background experiences the majority of these parents or guardians were single minded about wanting a better life for their children believing that a good K 12 education and college education were crucial to their children's advancement And while most believed resolutely in the hope offered by the public school system they recognized that schools couldn't do it all African American parents and guardians are willing to work with teachers and administrators to ensure that their children receive a quality education Yet if the historic achievement gap is ever to be eradicated teachers administrators researchers and policymakers must be more willing to view African American parents/guardians as assets African American parents/guardians must be invited to verbalize their concerns and those concerns must be taken seriously to effect meaningful and lasting change in the public school system
