Louise Erdrich's Justice Trilogy Connie A. Jacobs, Nancy J. Peterson, 2021-10-01 Louise Erdrich is one of the most important, prolific and widely read contemporary Indigenous writers. Here leading scholars analyze the three critically acclaimed recent novels The Plague of Doves (2008), The Round House (2012) and LaRose (2016) that make up what has become known as Erdrich's justice trilogy. Set in small towns and reservations of northern North Dakota, these three interwoven works bring together a vibrant cast of characters whose lives are shaped by history, identity and community. Individually and collectively, the essays herein illuminate Erdrich's storytelling abilities, the complex relations among crime, punishment and forgiveness that characterize her work, and the Anishinaabe contexts that underlie her presentation of character, conflict and community. The volume also includes a reader's guide to each novel, a glossary and an interview with Erdrich that will aid in readers' navigation of the justice novels. These timely, original and compelling readings make a valuable contribution to Erdrich scholarship and subsequently to the study of Native literature and women's authorship as a whole.

History of Literature in Canada Reingard M. Nischik, 2008 The development of literature in Canada with an eye to its multicultural, multiethnic, multilingual nature. From modest colonial beginnings, literature in Canada has arrived at the center stage of world literature. Works by English Canadian writers, both established writers such as Margaret Atwood and new talents such as Yann Martel, make regular appearances on international bestseller lists. French Canadian literature has also found its own voice in the North American and francophone worlds. CanLit has likewise developed into a staple of academic interest, pursued in Canadian Studies programs in Canada and around the world. This volume draws on the expertise of scholars from Canada, Germany, Austria and France, tracing Canadian literature from the indigenous oral tradition to the development of English Canadian and French Canadian literature since colonial times. Conceiving of Canada as a single but multifaceted culture, it accounts for specific characteristics of English and French Canadian literatures, such as the vital role of the short story in English Canada or that of the chanson in French Canada. Yet special attention is also paid to Aboriginal literature and to the pronounced transcultural, ethnically diverse character of much contemporary Canadian literature, thus moving clearly beyond the traditions of the two founding nations.
