Introduction

Literature is one of the main sources of information that describe people the way their predecessors lived and a value system they had. Being one of the integral parts of human culture, it has always been used to manifest peoples thoughts and feelings related to a certain issue or phenomena. Moreover, the difference in mentalities and perspectives peculiar to bearers of various cultures preconditioned the appearance of the unique masterpieces that could help to understand the peculiarities of peoples lives in ancient times. In this regard, when reading a great masterpiece that was created at a certain epoch, a reader could not but dig into the atmosphere peculiar to that period.

Besides, the comprehensive analysis of this creation could also help to acquire an improved understanding of certain phenomena and issues that were topical and attracted peoples attention. For this reason, the investigation of ancient texts might also help us to understand the moral and the approach to a certain issue.

Background

Besides, ancient Japanese literature could be taken as a source that contributes to a better understanding of the main peculiarities of culture and the unique traditions of this state. Numerous works could be considered a part of cultural heritage. Besides, The Tale of Genji and Tales of Times Now Past belongs to the same period and have numerous common features that help to analyze the style peculiar to that epoch and cogitate about the most important phenomena that were interesting for people.

Both these works were created at the Heian period and revolve around similar issues. Moreover, their adherence to the same era explains convergence in style and approaches towards the description of the most important events and phenomena that impacted peoples lives. Their structure is different; however, there are still several
