"Answer at Once" Katrina M. Powell,2009-10-09 With the Commonwealth of Virginia s Public Park Condemnation Act of 1928 the state surveyed for and acquired three thousand tracts of land that would become Shenandoah National Park The

Commonwealth condemned the homes of five hundred families so that their land could be donated to the federal government and placed under the auspices of the National Park Service Prompted by the condemnation of their land the residents began writing letters to National Park and other government officials to negotiate their rights and to request various services property and harvests Typically represented in the popular media as lawless illiterate and incompetent these mountaineers prove themselves otherwise in this poignant collection of letters The history told by the residents themselves both adds to and counters the story that is generally accepted about them These letters are housed in the Shenandoah National Park archives in Luray Virginia which was opened briefly to the public from 2000 to 2002 but then closed due to lack of funding This selection of roughly 150 of these letters in their entirety makes these documents available again not only to the public but also to scholars researchers and others interested in the region s history in the politics of the park and in the genealogy of the families Supplementing the letters are introductory text photographs annotation and oral histories that further document the lives of these individuals

A Way Out of No Way Dianne Swann-Wright,2002 An African American folk saying declares Our God can make a way out of no way He can do anything but fail When Dianne Swann Wright set out to capture and relate the history of her ancestors African Americans in central Virginia after the Civil War she had to find that way just as her people had done in creating a new life after emancipation In order to tell their story she could not rely solely on documents from the plantation where her forebears had lived Unlike the register of babies born marriages made or lives lost that white families Bibles contained ledgers recorded Swann Wright s ancestors as commodities Thus Swann Wright took another route setting out to gather spoken words stories anecdotes and sayings What results is a strikingly rich and textured history of a slave community Looking at relations between plantation owners and their slaves and the succeeding generations of both A Way out of No Way explores what it meant for the master slave relation to change to one of employer and employee and how patronage work relationships and land acquisition evolved as the people of Piedmont Virginia entered the twentieth century Swann Wright illustrates how two white landowners one of whom had headed a plantation before the Civil War learned to compensate freed persons for their labor All the more fascinating is her study of how the emancipated learned to be free of how they found their way out of no way

Patsy Cline: the Making of an Icon Douglas Gomery,2011-03-17 Patsy Cline remains a much beloved singer even though she died in 1963 By 1996 Patsy Cline had become such an icon that The New York Times magazine positioned her among a pantheon of women celebrities who transcended any single cultural genre A series of essays on Heroine Worship included Patsy Cline with such feminine icons as Eleanor Roosevelt Martha Graham Indira Gandhi Aretha Franklin and Jackie Onassis

The making of an icon is a cultural process that transcends traditional biographical analysis. One does not need to know the whole life story of the subject to understand how the subject became an icon. This book explores how Patsy Cline transcended class and poverty to become the country music singer that non country music fans embraced. It goes beyond a traditional biography to explore the years beyond her death. This is the first thoroughly researched book on Patsy Cline. It is true to Patsy and her legacy. Judy Sue Huyett Kempf, President, Celebrating Patsy Cline, The Patsy Cline Historic House, Winchester, Virginia. Douglas Gomery taught mass media history at the University of Wisconsin, Northwestern University, New York University, the University of Utrecht, the Netherlands, and the University of Maryland. He retired in 2005 to become the Official Historian for Celebrating Patsy Cline and Resident Scholar at the Library of American Broadcasting. Elusive Equality Jeffrey L. Littlejohn, Charles Howard Ford, 2012. In Elusive Equality Jeffrey L. Littlejohn and Charles H. Ford place Norfolk, Virginia, at the center of the South's school desegregation debates, tracing the crucial role that Norfolk's African Americans played in efforts to equalize and integrate the city's schools. The authors relate how local activists participated in the historic teacher pay parity cases of the 1930s and 1940s, how they fought against the school closures and Massive Resistance of the 1950s, and how they challenged continuing patterns of discrimination by insisting on crosstown busing in the 1970s and 1980s. Despite the advances made by local activists, however, Littlejohn and Ford argue that the vaunted urban advantage supposedly now enjoyed by Norfolk's public schools is not easy to reconcile with the city's continuing gaps and disparities in relation to race and class. In analyzing the history of struggles over school integration in Norfolk, the authors scrutinize the stories told by participants, including premature declarations of victory that laud particular achievements while ignoring the larger context in which they take place. Their research confirms that Norfolk was a harbinger of national trends in educational policy and civil rights. Drawing on recently released archival materials, oral interviews, and the rich newspaper coverage in the Journal and Guide, Virginian Pilot, and Ledger Dispatch, Littlejohn and Ford present a comprehensive, multidimensional, and unsentimental analysis of the century-long effort to gain educational equality. A historical study with contemporary implications, their book offers a balanced view based on a thorough, sober look at where Norfolk's school district has been and where it is going.

Urban Farming in the West Robert M. Carriker, 2010-04-15. From 1933 to 1935, the federal government's Division of Subsistence Homesteads created thirty-four New Deal communities that sought to provide a healthier and more economically secure life for disadvantaged Americans. These settlements were designed to combine the benefits of rural and urban living by offering part-time farming, uplifting social functions, and inexpensive homes. Four were located in the West: in Phoenix, Arizona; El Monte, and San Fernando, California; and Longview, Washington. Robert Carriker examines for the first time the intricate histories of these subsistence homestead projects, which have long been buried in bureaucratic records and clouded by misunderstanding, showing that in many ways they were among the agency's most successful efforts. He provides case studies of the projects, rescuing their obscure histories using archival documents and rare photographs He also reveals the machinations of civic groups and private citizens across the West who jockeyed for access to the funds being allotted for New Deal community building By describing what took place on these western homesteads Carriker shows that the DSH s agenda was not as far fetched as some have reported The tendency to condemn the Division and its projects he argues has failed to appreciate the good that came from some of the individual homestead communities particularly those in the Far West Although overshadowed by the larger undertakings of the New Deal some of these western communities remain thriving neighborhoods living legacies to FDR s efforts that show how the country once chose to deal with economic hardship Too often the DSH is noted for its failures Carriker s study shows that its western homesteads were instead qualified accomplishments Sexuality, Politics, and Social Control in Virginia, 1920-1945 Pippa
