Talking Animals in British Children's Fiction, 1786-1914 Tess Cosslett, 2017-03-02 In her reappraisal of canonical works such as Black Beauty Beautiful Joe Wind in the Willows and Peter Rabbit Tess Cosslett traces how nineteenth century debates about the human and animal intersected with or left their mark on the venerable genre of the animal story written for children Effortlessly applying a range of critical approaches from Bakhtinian ideas of the carnivalesque to feminist postcolonial and ecocritical theory she raises important questions about the construction of the child reader the qualifications of the implied author and the possibilities of children's literature compared with literature written for adults Perhaps most crucially Cosslett examines how the issues of animal speech and animal subjectivity were managed at a time when the possession of language and consciousness had become a vital sign of the difference between humans and animals Topics of great contemporary concern such as the relation of the human and the natural masculine and feminine child and adult are investigated within their nineteenth century contexts making this an important book for nineteenth century

Talking Animals Jan M. Walsh, 2016-04-22 Despite Kipling's popularity as an author and his standing as a politically controversial figure much of his work has remained relatively unexamined due to its characterization as children's literature Sue Walsh challenges the apparently clear division between children's and adult literature and poses important questions about how these strict categories have influenced critical work on Kipling and on literature in general For example why are some of Kipling's books viewed as children's literature and what critical assumptions does this label produce Why is it that Kim is viewed by critics as transcending attempts at categorization Using Kipling as a case study Walsh discusses texts such as Kim The Jungle Books The Just So Stories Puck of Pook's Hill and Rewards and Fairies re-evaluating earlier critical approaches and offering fresh readings of these relatively neglected works In the process she suggests new directions for postcolonial and childhood studies and interrogates the way biographical criticism on children's literature in particular has tended to supersede and obstruct other kinds of readings Victorians and Their Animals Brenda Ayres, 2018-12-07 This book Victorians and

Their Animals Beast on a Leash investigates the notion that British Victorians did see themselves as naturally dominant species over other humans and over animals. They conscientiously hegemonically were determined to rule those beneath them and the animal within themselves albeit with varying degrees of success and failure. The articles in this collection apply posthuman and other theories including queer postcolonialism, deconstruction and Marxism in their exploration of Victorian attitudes toward animals. They study the biopolitical relationships between human and nonhuman animals in several key Victorian literary works. Some of this book's chapters deal with animal ethics and moral aesthetics. Also being studied is the representation of animals in several Victorian novels as narrative devices to signify class status and gender dynamics either to iterate socially acceptable mores or to satirize hypocrisy or breach of behavior or to voice social protest. All of the chapters analyse the interdependence of people and animals during the nineteenth century.

The Origin of Ideas Mark Turner, 2014-01-02 What makes human beings so innovative so adept at rapid creative thinking? Where do new ideas come from and once we have them how can we carry them mentally into new situations? What allows our thinking to range easily over time space causation and agency so easily that we take this truly remarkable ability for granted? In The Origin of Ideas Mark Turner offers a provocative new theory to answer these and many other questions. While other species do what we cannot fly run amazingly fast see in the dark only human beings can innovate so rapidly and widely. Turner argues that this distinctively human spark was an evolutionary advance that developed from a particular kind of mental operation which he calls blending: our ability to take two or more ideas and create a new idea in the blend. Turner begins by looking at the lionman, a 32 000 year old ivory figurine, one of the earliest examples of blending. Here the concepts lion and man are merged into a new figure, the lionman. Turner argues that at some stage during the Paleolithic Age humans reached a tipping point. Before that we were a bunch of large unimaginative mammals. After that we were poised to take over the world. Once biological evolution hit upon making brains that could do advanced blending we possessed the capacity to invent and maintain culture. Cultural innovation could then progress by leaps and bounds over biological evolution itself leading to the highest forms of human cognition and creativity. For anyone interested in how and why our minds work the way they do The Origin of Ideas offers a wealth of original insights and is itself a brilliant example of the innovative thinking it describes.
