to develop an alternative account of sentences involving these verbs According to this view which is called parentheticalism we very commonly use these verbs in a parenthetical sense These verbs themselves express backgrounded side remarks on the contents they embed and these latter embedded contents constitute the at issue contents This means that instead of speaking about the subject's mental states we often use sentences involving believe and want to speak about the world from her point of view Henning makes this notion precise and uses it to solve various puzzles concerning normative discourse The final result is a new unified understanding of normative discourse which gets by without postulating conceptual breaks between objective and subjective normative reasons or normative reasons and rationality or indeed between the reasons we ascribe to an agent and the reasons she herself can be expected to cite Instead of being connected to either subjective mental states or objective facts all of these normative statuses are can be adequately articulated by citing worldly considerations from a subject's point of view
