What Children Need

When They Grieve Julia Wilcox Rathkey,2010-03-24 GIVE YOUR CHILDREN WHAT THEY NEED MOST When Julia Wilcox Rathkey lost her husband her three children lost their father Within hours it became sharply clear that each child a twelve year old daughter and twin ten year old sons would grieve the loss in a radically different way While one harbored anger another experienced denial and the third was gripped with fear Rathkey quickly determined that each youngster would require a different response from the adults in their lives particularly from her But despite the array of emotions and reactions Rathkey arrived at four essentials that each child would need routine love honesty and security These four concepts however simple are crucial for those who want to successfully guide their children through one of the most difficult passages they may face in life the loss of a loved one What Children Need When They Grieve explores The scope of a child s reactions to death including grief and fear Advice on how to talk with your child and how to recognize their need for privacy What other adults can do to help and what they should refrain from doing Concise and to the point advice about your child s daily routine at home and at school Written with compassion and the knowledge that comes from the experience of loss designed not to overwhelm with too much information and with an introduction by an expert in childhood bereavement What Children Need When They Grieve offers strategies support and comfort for grieving families

Single Mothers in Contemporary Japan Aya Ezawa, 2016-05-12 Combining work and family remains a major challenge for married women in contemporary Japan and it s not uncommon for them to quit working when starting a family Single mothers by contrast almost always work regardless of the age of their children Despite their eagerness to support themselves and their children through employment their average income remains low and many live on a household budget close to the poverty line This book examines how the difficult living conditions facing single mothers in Japan highlight not only the challenges they face in earning a family wage and managing the work family balance but also reveals the class dimensions of family life in contemporary Japan The need to make ends meet with few resources means that mothers may find it difficult to uphold the lifestyle they may consider as most appropriate for the upbringing of their children and that they may have to choose between their presence at home in line with the ideal of the middle class housewife and mother or devoting more time to earning an income that can pay for a good education Social class in this case is not just a matter of education occupation or income but is also expressed by mothers approaches to their children s upbringing and future opportunities in education and employment Based on life history interviews with single mothers this study examines the gendered meanings of social class and social achievement and the role of maternal practices
