K. Adam, 2015-12-03 How could an urban American Indian tribe having survived relentless earlier governmental attempts to declare its culture extinct be once again on the verge of extinction The Tigua of Ysleta del Sur Pueblo dwell in the outskirts of El Paso Texas where the infamous Jack Abramoff was in the news for helping to close their highly successful casino This casino had created jobs and funded health care for the tribe and now the Tigua are once more taking action to preserve their economy membership and culture This highly publicised casino story is set against the remarkably rich history of the Tigua including earlier attempts by national and state governments to steal the tribe's land and destroy its legal status Anthropologist S K Adam explores how questions of identity can be linked to cultural survival Had the Tigua somehow survived 300 years of persecution and urban encroachment or as alleged by the government were they really just Mexicanised Indians acting fraudulently Adam examines how terms such as indigeneity identity authenticity culture change and perseverance are understood and defined by the US government He analyses how issues of power law discourse genocide and self determination affect the relationship between the United States and its indigenous populations past and present

The Ethnography of Vietnam's Central Highlanders Oscar Salemink, 2019-10-18 This book looks at ethnographic discourses concerning the indigenous population of Vietnam's Central Highlands during periods of christianization colonization war and socialist transformation and analyses these in their relation to tribal ethnic territorial governmental and gendered discourses Salemink's book is a timely contribution to anthropological knowledge as the ethnic minorities in Vietnam have again been the object of fierce academic debate This is a historically grounded post colonial critique relevant to theories of ethnicity and the history of anthropology and will be of interest to graduate students of anthropology and cultural studies as well as Vietnam studies

The Politics of Language

Oppression in Tibet Gerald Roche, 2024-11-15 In The Politics of Language Oppression in Tibet Gerald Roche sheds light on a global crisis of linguistic diversity that will see at least half of the world's languages disappear this century Roche explores the erosion of linguistic diversity through a study of a community on the northeastern Tibetan Plateau in the People's Republic of China Manegacha is but one of the sixty minority languages in Tibet and is spoken by about 8 000 people who are otherwise mostly indistinguishable from the Tibetan communities surrounding them Recently many in these communities have switched to speaking Tibetan and Manegacha faces an uncertain future The author uses the Manegacha case to show how linguistic diversity across Tibet is collapsing under assimilatory state policies He looks at how global advocacy networks inadequately acknowledge this issue highlighting the complex politics of language in an inter connected world The Politics of Language Oppression in Tibet broadens our understanding of Tibet and China the crisis of global linguistic diversity and the radical changes needed to address this crisis

Ancestral Lines John Barker, 2016-04-05 This compelling ethnography offers a nuanced case study of the ways in which the Maisin of Papua New Guinea navigate pressing economic and environmental issues Beautifully written and accessible to most readers Ancestral Lines is designed with introductory cultural anthropology courses in mind Barker has organized the book into chapters that mirror many of the major topics covered in introductory cultural anthropology such as kinship economic pursuit social arrangements gender relations religion politics and the environment The second edition has been revised throughout with a new timeline of events and a final chapter that brings readers up to date on important events since 2002 including a devastating cyclone and a major court victory against the forestry industry

Sluka, 2012-01-24 Newly revised Ethnographic Fieldwork An Anthropological Reader Second Edition provides readers with a picture of the breadth variation and complexity of fieldwork The updated selections offer insight into the ethnographer's experience of gathering and analyzing data and a richer understanding of the conflicts hazards and ethical challenges of pursuing fieldwork around the globe Offers an international collection of classic and contemporary readings to provide students with a broad understanding of historical methodological ethical reflexive and stylistic issues in fieldwork Features 16 new articles and revised part introductions with additional insights into the experience of conducting ethnographic fieldwork Explores the importance of fieldwork practice in achieving the core theoretical and methodological goals of anthropology Highlights the personal and professional challenges of field researchers from issues of professional identity fieldwork relations activism and the conflicts hazards and ethical concerns of community work

The Future of Indigenous Museums Nick Stanley, 2008 Indigenous museums and cultural centres have sprung up across the developing world and particularly in the Southwest Pacific This book looks to the future of museum practice through examining how these museums have evolved to incorporate the present and the future in the display of culture Refugee Encounters at the Turkish-Syrian Border Şule Can, 2019-10-08 The Turkish Syrian borderlands host almost half of the Syrian refugees with an estimated 1.5 million people arriving in the area following the outbreak of the Syrian civil war. This book investigates the ongoing negotiations of ethnicity, religion, and state at the border as refugees struggle to settle and to navigate their encounters with the Turkish state and with different sectarian groups. In particular, the book explores the situation in Antakya, the site of the ancient city of Antioch, the cradle of civilizations and now populated by diverse populations of Arab Alawites, Christians, and Sunni Turks. The book demonstrates that urban refugee encounters at the margins of the state reveal larger concerns that encompass state practices and regional politics. Overall, the book shows how and why displacement in the Middle East is intertwined with negotiations of identity, politics, and state. Faced with an environment of everyday oppression, refugees negotiate their own urban space and refugee status, challenging, resisting, and sometimes confirming sectarian boundaries. This book's detailed analysis will be of interest to anthropologists, geographers, sociologists, historians, and Middle Eastern studies scholars who are working on questions of displacement, cultural boundaries, and the politics of civil war in border regions.
