Australian Literature Graham Huggan, 2007-09-27 The Oxford Studies in Postcolonial Literatures series offers stimulating and accessible introductions to definitive topics and key genres and regions within the rapidly diversifying field of postcolonial literary studies in English In a provocative contribution to the series Graham Huggan presents fresh readings of an outstanding sometimes deeply unsettling national literature whose writers and readers just as unmistakably belong to the wider world Australian literature is not the unique province of Australian readers and critics nor is its exclusive task to provide an internal commentary on changing national concerns Huggan's book adopts a transnational approach motivated by postcolonial interests in which contemporary ideas taken from postcolonial criticism and critical race theory are productively combined and imaginatively transformed Rejecting the fashionable view that Australia is not and never will be postcolonial Huggan argues on the contrary that Australian literature like other settler literatures requires close attention to postcolonial methods and concerns A postcolonial approach to Australian literature he suggests is more than just a case for a more inclusive nationalism it also involves a general acknowledgement of the nation's changed relationship to an increasingly globalized world As such the book helps to deprovincialize Australian literary studies Australian Literature also contributes to debates about the continuing history of racism in Australia a history in which the nation's literature has played a constitutive role as both product and producer of racial tensions and anxieties nowhere more visible than in the discourse it has produced about race both within and beyond the national context

Greek Islander Migration to Australia since the 1950s Melissa N. Afentoulis, 2021-11-23 Illuminating the experiences of immigrants to Australia in the late twentieth century this book uses oral history to explore how identity and belonging are shaped through migration Between the 1950s and the 1970s many inhabitants from the small Greek island of Limnos travelled to Australia to flee post war devastation and economic disaster With an emphasis on the lived experiences and memories of Limnians the book sheds light on the emotional pain and trauma they felt as they were separated from their families and homeland Moving away from more traditional outlooks on migration studies this book emphasises the significance of ethno regional identity and analyses how it can bring strength and longevity to a constructed community Both the roles of men and women within the Greek diaspora are examined in the way that they made the difficult decision to leave their homeland and subsequently how they came to nurture and build families within a new evolving community Looking beyond first generation migration the author analyses the pattern of return visits to Limnos by the descendants of migrants Acting as a form of identity consolidation for second generation migrants this journey to the ancestral homeland highlights the fluidity of what it means to belong somewhere and redefines the notion of home The author provides an alternative perspective to traditional migration studies and reaffirms the importance of transnational identity A unique and important addition to research this book combines memory studies and oral narrative to analyse how identity and belonging can be shaped across borders rather than within them Soft Weapons Gillian Whitlock, 2010-02-15
