

The background of the cover is a rich, textured painting of a bazaar. A large, ornate archway frames a bright, sunlit street in the distance. On the left, a multi-story building with arched windows and balconies is visible. In the foreground, several figures in traditional Middle Eastern or North African clothing are engaged in various activities. A man in a dark robe and turban stands on the left, while others are seen near stalls or walking. The overall atmosphere is one of a busy, historic marketplace.

The Great Juristic Bazaar William Twining, 2017-09-08 Some law students find jurisprudence daunting impersonal dry and seemingly detached from practical affairs William Twining believes that many jurists have been fascinating people struggling with questions that are both historically significant and relevant to contemporary issues This book brings together previously published essays that centre on three related themes reading Juristic texts the role of narrative in law and relations between theory and practice Building on a pragmatic view of jurisprudence the author explores different ways of reading and using Juristic texts to set them in context to bring them to life and to engage with the reader's own concerns He applies this approach to throw fresh light on four familiar figures Holmes Bentham Hart and Llewellyn Challenging limited agendas and parochial points of view Twining outlines a programme for a broad approach to legal theory in the context of globalization He satirizes some bad habits in jurisprudence and explores in depth how stories can be seductive vehicles for cheating in legal contexts yet are essential for making sense of disputes about fact or law their strategies to gain access to urban services through people's power and politics. Focusing on the transdisciplinary field of urban anthropology, the chapters uncover the urban forces, policies, and actions that facilitate urban politics. It also investigates the people who live in poor neighborhoods who, in the face of exclusion, have included themselves in urban development planning and design by employing diverse strategies against those forces in the urban politics, e.g., accepting dominance, bargaining, or having control over their lives. This book will recontextualize an ethnographic inquiry into the exclusion and inclusion of the people within city development design plans and innovations in applications of anthropological theory and methodology. This book will encourage the reader to understand the politics of state's development projects and plans and furthermore instigate the city government planners and policymakers to focus on the people's political power and agency that enables them to achieve inclusion. It will therefore be of interest to researchers and students of urban planning and development, urban geography, and urban anthropology as well as planning professionals and policymakers.
