The Tenth Muse Laura Marcus,2010-08-12 The Tenth Muse explores writings on the cinema in the first decades of the twentieth century Laura Marcus examines the impact of cinema on early twentieth century literary and more broadly aesthetic and cultural consciousness by bringing together the study of the terms and strategies of early writings about film with literary engagement with cinema in the same period She gives a new understanding of the ways in which early writers about film reviewers critics theorists developed aesthetic categories to define and accommodate what was called the seventh art or the tenth muse and found discursive strategies adequate to the representation of the new art and technology of cinema with its unprecedented powers of movement In examining the writings of early film critics and commentators in tandem with those of more specifically literary figures including H G Wells and Virginia Woolf and in bringing literary texts into this field Laura Marcus provides a new account of relationships between cinema and literature Intertwining two major strands of research the exploration of early film criticism and theory and cinema s presence in literary texts The Tenth Muse shows how issues central to an understanding of cinema including questions of time repetition movement vision sound and silence are threaded through both kinds of writing and the ways in which discursive and fictional writings overlapped The movement that defined cinema was also perceived as a more fragile and unstable ephemerality that inhered at every level from the fleeting nature of the projected images to the vagaries of cinematic exhibition It was the anxiety over the mutability of the medium and its exhibition which from the 1920s onwards led to the establishment of such institutional spaces for cinema as the London based Film Society the new film journals and in the 1930s the first film archives The Tenth Muse explores the continuities between these sites of cinematic culture and the conceptual literary and philosophical understandings of the filmic medium

The Rhetoric of Oil in the Twenty-First Century Heather Graves,David Edward Beard,2019-04-05 This book examines mass communication and civic participation in the age of oil analyzing the rhetorical and discursive ways that governments and corporations shape public opinion and public policy and activists attempt to reframe public debates to resist corporate framing In the twenty first century oil has become a subject of civic deliberation Environmental concerns have intensified questions of indigenous rights have arisen and private and public investment in energy companies has become open to deliberation International contributors use local events as a starting point to explore larger issues associated with oil dependent societies and cultures This interdisciplinary collection synthesizes work in the energy humanities rhetorical studies and environmental studies to analyze the global discourse of oil from the start of the twentieth century into the era of transnational corporations of the 21st century This book will be a vital text for scholars in communication studies the energy humanities and in environmental studies Case studies are framed accessibly and the theoretical lenses are accessible across disciplines making it ideal for a post graduate and advanced undergraduate audience in these fields
