Fiction, Crime, and the Feminine Rédouane Abouddahab, 2011-01-18 The form of art called fiction has always been the privileged framework providing the perfect alibi for facing framing and containing the Other s desire and the strange libido attached to violence in other words there is an ambivalent dimension inherent in the scenarios and fantasies we enjoy by proxy Are not the fairy tales of our childhood full of images of death and violence whose fascinating presence is paradoxically meant to make us feel all the more safely tucked up in bed After all the wolf or the Little Red Riding Hood the monstrous killer or the unfortunate victim are but fictitious characters mere shifting positions they are not me therefore thanks to the willing suspension of disbelief process any reading I may shift into their speech or thoughts on the fictional screen a stage both for projection of and protection from such forbidden enjoyments Crime fiction has also for a long time been the genre for such containment Ever since Victorian craniology criminal violence has remained as resistant as ever to scientific measurement even to the more recent techniques of investigation of the brain Where women are concerned they were first and mostly fascinating victims but they also nowadays feature in the role of the criminals adding to the first fascination the mystery of a woman s desire beyond the pale of societal expectations Indeed more and more pieces of crime fiction nowadays refuse to grant the simple pleasures of old what if for example the text refuses to comply to the whodunnit convention What about those stories that instead of closure will diffuse a mist a sense of unrest by their emphasis on the inexplicable lure of violence In other words gone are the days of the satisfaction granted by traditional closure and return to a solidly structured society made safe again by the disposal of the scene of violence But writing as such is also to be taken into consideration and what forcefully determines the writing is not only the historical trauma whose active presence in the fiction cannot be denied but especially some unresolved traumatic event or exclusion that makes one write and through the writing quest bliss but that also makes one renounce the attachment to the inevitably lost bliss Crime Writers Elizabeth Haynes, 2011-01-19 This invaluable resource provides information about and sources for researching 50 of the top crime genre writers including websites and other online resources Crime Writers A Research Guide is an easy to use launch pad for learning more about crime fiction authors including those who write traditional mystery novels suspense novels and thrillers

Investigating Identities, 2009-01-01 Investigating Identities Questions of Identity in Contemporary International Crime Fiction is one of the relatively few books to date which adopts a comparative approach to the study of the genre This collection of twenty essays by international scholars examining crime fiction production from over a dozen countries confirms that a comparative approach can both shed light on processes of adaptation and appropriation of the genre within specific national regional or local contexts and also uncover similarities between the works of authors from very different areas Contributors explore discourse concerning national and historical memory language race ethnicity culture and gender and examine how identity is affirmed and challenged in the crime genre today They reveal a growing tendency towards hybridization and postmodern experimentation and increasing engagement with philosophical enquiry into the epistemological dimensions of investigation Throughout the notion of stable identities is subject to scrutiny While each essay in itself is a valuable addition to existing criticism on the genre all the chapters mutually inform and complement each other in fascinating and often unexpected ways This volume makes an important contribution to the growing field of crime fiction studies and to ongoing debates on questions of identity It will therefore be of special interest to students and scholars of the crime genre identity studies and comparative literature It will also appeal to all who enjoy reading contemporary crime fiction

Crime Fiction and National Identities in the Global Age

Julie H. Kim, 2020-05-25 To read a crime novel today largely simulates the exercise of reading newspapers or watching the news The speed and frequency with which today's bestselling works of crime fiction are produced allow them to mirror and dissect nearly contemporaneous socio-political events and conflicts This collection examines this phenomenon and offers original critical essays on how national identity appears in international crime fiction in the age of populism and globalization These essays address topics such as the array of competing nationalisms in Europe Indian secularism versus Hindu communalism the populist rhetoric tinged with misogyny or homophobia in the United States racial religious or ethnic others who are sidelined in political appeals to dominant native voices and the increasing economic chasm between a rich and poor More broadly these essays inquire into themes such as how national identity and various conceptions of masculinity are woven together how dominant native cultures interact with migrant and colonized cultures to explore insider outsider paradigms and identity politics and how generic and cultural boundaries are repeatedly crossed in postcolonial detective fiction
