Sportswriters scoffed at the crude western boats and their crews But for the next forty years the University of Washington dominated rowing around the world The secret of the Huskies success was George Pocock a soft spoken English immigrant raised on the banks of the Thames Pocock combined perfectionism with innovation to make the lightest best balanced fastest shells the world had ever seen After studying the magnificent canoes built by Northwest Indians he broke with tradition and began to make shells of native cedar Pocock who had been a champion sculler in his youth never credited his boats for the accomplishments of a crew He wanted every rower to share his vision of discipline and teamwork As rowers from the University of Washington went on to become coaches at major universities across the country Pocock s philosophy and his shells became nationally famous in the world of crew Drawing on documents provided by Pocock s family photographs from the University of Washington Crew Archives and interviews with rowers who revered the man Newell evokes the times as well as the life of this unique figure in American sport Prince Ships of Northern B.C.
