Environmental Skill Mark Coeckelbergh,2015-02-20 Today it is widely recognized that we face urgent and serious environmental problems and we know much about them yet we do very little What explains this lack of motivation and change Why is it so hard to change our lives This book addresses this question by means of a philosophical inquiry into the conditions of possibility for environmental change It discusses how we can become more motivated to do environmental good and what kind of knowledge we need for this and explores the relations between motivation knowledge and modernity After reviewing a broad range of possible philosophical and psychological responses to environmental apathy and inertia the author argues for moving away from a modern focus on either detached reason and control Stoicism and Enlightenment reason or the natural the sentiments and the authentic Romanticism both of which make possible disengaging and alienating modes of relating to our environment Instead he develops the notion of environmental skill a concept that bridges the gap between knowledge and action re interprets environmental virtue and suggests an environmental ethics centered on experience know how and skillful engagement with our environment The author then explores the implications of this ethics for our lives it changes the way we think about and deal with health food animals energy climate change politics and technology Theoretical Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis,2011 An additional assumption was that the processes for theory development were new to nursing and hence nurses in graduate programs learned strategies for advancing knowledge from other disciplines This assumption was debunked with the knowledge that nurses were always engaged in knowledge development driven by their experiences in clinical practice Because of these assumptions most of the early writing about theory development was about outlining strategies that should be used rather than strategies that have already been used in the discipline to develop theories Theorists themselves did not uncover or adequately discuss ways by which they developed their theories therefore the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines mainly the physical and social sciences And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research Provided by publisher Bibliography of Agriculture ,1974 American Reference Books Annual Juneal M.
