VERÓNICA LIPKALAT¹

La idea de una política es transformarse en antropólogo, de hacer cosas del subconsciente, una disciplina aprendida a aquellos con el poder para intervenir y poder así. Es poder la transformación del disciplinado con una "acción política transformada". En otros, un diálogo interdisciplinario entre personas que viven en diferentes culturas, que para así en la disciplina de las ciencias sociales para el futuro.

Juan Roca, 1979

A pesar de que la "vieja escuela", como la llama Anna Chomkova,² ha sido un elemento central en la transformación de la ciencia humana y crítica antropológica desde los años sesenta, y a pesar de que científicos y artistas como el gran antropólogo Juan Roca han representado desde hace décadas a través de la imagen para generar nuevas formas de aproximación al conocimiento de la realidad social, en México la antropología virtual sigue siendo desconocida o se ve con recelo para llevar al trabajo de esta disciplina, o bien se contextualiza bajo otros como una sub-área dentro del campo multidisciplinario.

En este artículo planteo la necesidad de reconsiderar la antropología virtual como una forma totalmente distinta y experimental de trabajar con la representación cultural. Un método que requiere una profunda transformación del sujeto y las perspectivas de la

Vivir como un ser de tiempo Claudia Federica Zosi, 2006-05 Transition Cinema Jessica L. Stites Mor, 2012-05-27 In Transition Cinema Jessica Stites Mor documents the critical role filmmakers the film industry and state regulators played in Argentina's volatile and unfinished transition from dictatorship to democracy She shows how during periods of both military repression and civilian rule the state moved to control political film production and its content distribution and exhibition She also reveals the strategies that the industry independent filmmakers and film activists employed to comply with or circumvent these regulations Stites Mor traces three distinct generations of transition cinema each defined by a seminal event that shifted the political economy of national filmmaking The first generation of filmmakers witnessed and participated in civil uprisings such as the Cordobazo in 1969 and faced waves of repression violence and censorship This generation gave rise to vibrant underground exhibitions and film clubs and eventually became symbolically linked to the Peronist Left and radical militancy Following the 1983 return to civilian rule a second generation of political filmmakers emerged at the center of public debates when Buenos Aires became the locus for state level cultural programs to address human rights and collective memory Building on that legacy a third generation of filmmakers explored new modes of activist and political filmmaking aided by digital technology They pioneered new genres such as the street phenomenon of cine piquetero and introduced resistance politics and social movements into highly visible public spaces In this captivating work Stites Mor examines how social movements political actors filmmakers and government and industry institutions all became deeply enmeshed in the project of Argentina s transition cinema She demonstrates how film emerged as the chronicler of political struggles in a dialogue with the past present and future whose message transcended both cultural and national borders
