The Guide To English Language Teaching Yearbook 2006:

The Changing Faces of Ireland Merike Darmody, Naomi Tyrrell, Steve Song, 2011-10-22 Before the economic boom of the 1990s Ireland was known as a nation of emigrants. The past fifteen years however have seen the transformation of Ireland from a country of net emigration to one of net immigration on a scale and at a pace unprecedented in comparative context. As a result Irish society has become more diverse in terms of nationality, language, ethnicity and religious affiliation and these changes are now clearly reflected in the composition of both primary and secondary schools, presenting these with challenges as well as opportunities. Despite the increased number of ethnically diverse immigrant children and young people in the Ireland currently there is a paucity of information about aspects of their lives in Ireland. This book is aimed at contributing to this gap in knowledge. This edited collection will be of interest to researchers in the fields of migration studies, childhood studies, education studies, human geography, sociology, applied social studies, social work, health studies and psychology. It will also be a useful resource to educators, social workers, youth workers and community members working with or preparing to work with children with immigrant and ethnic minority backgrounds in Ireland.

International Handbook of Children, Media and Culture Kirsten Drotner, Sonia Livingstone, 2008-02-19 This essential volume brings together the work of internationally renowned researchers, each experts in their field, in order to capture the diversity of children and young people's media cultures around the world. Why are the media such a crucial part of children's daily lives? Are they becoming more important, more influential, and in what ways? Or does a historical perspective reveal how past media have long framed children's cultural horizons, or perhaps how families, however constituted, have long shaped the ways children relate to media? In addressing such questions, the contributors present detailed empirical cases to uncover how children weave together diverse forms and technologies to create a rich symbolic tapestry which in turn shapes their social relationships. At the same time, many concerns even public panics arise regarding children's engagement with media, leading the contributors also to inquire into the risky or problematic aspects of today's highly mediated world. Deliberately selected to represent as many parts of the globe as possible and with a commitment to recognizing both the similarities and differences in children and young people's lives from China to Denmark, from Canada to India, from Japan to Iceland, the authors offer a rich contextualization of children's engagement with their particular media and communication environment while also pursuing cross-cutting themes in terms of comparative and global trends. Each chapter provides a clear orientation for new readers to the main debates and core issues addressed, combined with a depth of analysis and argumentation to stimulate the thinking of advanced students and established scholars. Since children and young people are a focus of study across different disciplines, the volume is thoroughly multi-disciplinary. Yet since children and young people are all too easily neglected by these same disciplines, this volume hopes to accord their interests and concerns the surely merit.

Willingness to Communicate in the Chinese EFL University Classroom Jian-E Peng, 2014-02-24 This book presents mixed methods research into Chinese students' willingness to communicate (WTC) in an EFL classroom context. The interrelationships between WTC and motivation, communication confidence, learner beliefs and classroom environment are examined using structural equation modelling on data collected in a large scale survey These results are then complemented and expanded upon in a follow up multiple case study that identifies six themes which account for fluctuations of WTC over time and across situations The qualitative and quantitative data provide the grounds for the proposition of an ecological model of WTC in the Chinese EFL university classroom which reveals that WTC is socioculturally constructed as a function of the interaction of individual and environmental factors inside and beyond the classroom walls

Teaching and Learning Chinese as a Second or Foreign Language Ko-Yin Sung, 2019-10-23

Teaching and Learning Chinese as a Second or Foreign Language edited by Ko Yin Sung addresses three emerging themes in the field of Chinese language teaching and learning:

- 1 Increasingly ubiquitous in all language learning and teaching and for the learning of Chinese as a second language in particular, information and communication technology (ICT) can serve as an important and effective tool. Several chapters focus on how certain emerging ICT tools are applied in teaching and learning Chinese as a second language.
- 2 Due to China's economic and political influence, the number of students of all ages studying Chinese as a second language but especially young learners has increased in many parts of the world. Despite this, the research into teaching Chinese to young learners has lagged behind. Several chapters investigate young learners' motivations and effective methods for assisting them to master the Chinese language.
- 3 The writing system of the Chinese language poses many challenges for learners, especially those more familiar with alphabetical languages. In light of this difficulty in learning Chinese characters, some of the chapters identify effective teaching and learning strategies to master the Chinese language.
