Universitas Thomas E. Boudreau, 1998-05-12 Believing that current educational policies and practices in American institutions of higher learning contribute to an incoherent disjunctive and wasteful four year experience for many undergraduates the author provides a sense of new direction to aid in the restructuring and reform of undergraduate education in America The primary question of the work is How can the years of undergraduate education empower the student with the knowledge and integrated set of skills needed for a lifetime of learning and productive work Boudreau focuses on the primary responsibility of all institutions of higher learning to provide a superior undergraduate education All other functions of a university should be secondary to this commitment Unfortunately this basic premise seems lost today This work argues that universities must undergo significant reform and renewal especially at the undergraduate level if they are to prepare students successfully for the future

Moore, 2003. Structured around a series of lectures presented at the Jung Institute of Chicago in a program entitled Jungian Psychology and Human Spirituality: Liberation from Tribalism in Religious Life, this book-length essay attacks the related problems of human evil, spiritual narcissism, secularism, and ritual and grandiosity. Robert Moore dares to insist that we stop ignoring these issues and provides clear, sighted guidance for where to start and what to expect. Along the way, he pulls together many important threads from recent findings in theology, spirituality, and psychology, and brings us to a point where we can conceive of embarking on a corrective course. Traditional doctrinal and historical interpretation both rely heavily on rational analysis. But from the disciples at Emmaus to the beginnings of the present century, it has been the impact of scripture upon the human heart that has changed human lives. In recent decades, this impact has been strengthened by advances in linguistic and literary theory, by such disparate influences as feminism, structuralism, Jungianism, deconstructionism, the analysis of archaic imagery and myth, the recovery of Gnostic texts, and finally, an openness to pluralism, whether ethnic, geographic, religious, or interpretive. All of these factors are treated here with a brevity and comprehensiveness which convincingly show that the reader of scripture has a creative and not merely passive role. If you would understand the deepest roots of terrorism, greed, and
