Peter Uwe Hohendahl

The Institution Of Criticism:

The Institution of Criticism Peter Uwe Hohendahl, 2016-11-01 German radicals of the 1960s announced the death of literature. For them, literature both past and present as well as conventional discussions of literary issues had lost its meaning. In The Institution of Criticism, Peter Uwe Hohendahl explores the implications of this crisis from a Marxist perspective and attempts to define the tasks and responsibilities of criticism in advanced capitalist societies. Hohendahl takes a close look at the social history of literary criticism in Germany since the eighteenth century. Drawing on the tradition of the Frankfurt School and on Jürgen Habermas's concept of the public sphere, Hohendahl sheds light on some of the important political and social forces that shape literature and culture. The Institution of Criticism is made up of seven essays originally published in German and a long theoretical introduction written by the author with English language readers in mind. This book conveys the rich possibilities of the German perspective for those who employ American and French critical techniques and for students of contemporary critical theory.

Grounds of Literary Criticism Suresh Raval, 1998 This sophisticated and wide-ranging look at literary criticism addresses the major theorists of today and proposes a constructive approach to challenging critical debates. Disclosing conflict as the inevitable outcome of historical change, Suresh Raval refuses the stark either/or choice between the foundationalist stance which seeks to find the right answers and the relativist position which denies the possibility of identifying right and wrong. Raval explores the question of conflict in literary criticism and theory by analyzing how different theories have treated key issues not to resolve these problems but to show why they resist decisive solution.

The Cambridge History of Literary Criticism: Volume 4, The Eighteenth Century H. B. Nisbet, Claude Rawson, 2005-12-08 This is a comprehensive 1997 account of the history of literary criticism in Britain and Europe between 1660 and 1800. Unlike previous histories, it is not just a chronological survey of critical writing but a multidisciplinary investigation of how the understanding of literature and its various genres was transformed at the start of the modern era by developments in philosophy, psychology, the natural sciences, linguistics, and other disciplines as well as in society at large. In the process, modern literary theory at first often implicit in literary texts themselves emancipated itself from classical poetics and rhetoric, and literary criticism emerged as a full-time professional activity catering for an expanding literate public. The volume is international both in coverage and in authorship. Extensive bibliographies provide guidance for further specialised study.

The Institution of Theory Murray Krieger, 2019-12-01 Originally published in 1994, The Institution of Theory by Murray Krieger examines at once sympathetically and critically the process by which theory has become institutionalized in the American academy and the consequences of theory as an academic institution. He traces the transformation of literary theory into critical theory and relates it to changes in the place of literature within questions about discourse at large. And he faces the costs as well as the gains of the recent denial of privilege to the literary. To support his view of the issues at stake in current theoretical debates, Krieger surveys both the history of American criticism and the general history of literary theory.

in the West He sees divisions in each of them that foreshadow the current debates in the first a conflict between the social and the aesthetic functions of literature and in the second a conflict between the treatment of literature as a reflection of a culture's ideology and the treatment of literature as a subversion of that ideology To what extent he asks are our debates new and to what extent are they merely refashioned versions of those we have always had

Film Criticism as a Cultural Institution Huw Walmsley-Evans, 2018-03-28 At the beginning of the 21st century film criticism was described as in crisis The decline of print journalism a series of lay offs of prominent critics and the rise of amateur reviewing online spurred a conversation about the decline even death of film criticism This discourse flourished in part because film criticism has been little examined in scholarship to date This book takes a deeper look at film criticism by focusing on its institutional contours This is achieved through a combination of archival research and interviews with prominent film critics and stakeholders including Adrian Martin LOLA Stephanie Zacharek Time Peter Bart Variety and Andrew Sarris The Village Voice Film Criticism as a Cultural Institution first examines the contemporary crisis conversation surrounding film criticism comparing this to historical precedents It then provides what today's crisis conversation does not an account of film criticism's institutional formations Using primarily U S and Australian case studies based on interviews observation and archival research as well as accounts from other national schools the book maps contemporary film criticism Across various sites such as publications or online spaces and organisations such as film critics circles it elucidates film criticism's institutional practices tasks compartments and personae Looking at the history of conversations about film criticism shows us that crisis has always been a leitmotif While acknowledging the considerable changes and challenges that film criticism faces today this book situates these within an historical context and proposes an institutional framework that allows us to move beyond crisis discourse Looking at film criticism in this way allows us to see that the very question of what counts as film criticism is continually contested within an institutional ecology made up of distinctive critical compartments addressed to distinctive audiences

Token Professionals and Master Critics James J. Sosnoski, 1994-03-08 This book addresses literary critics in mainstream institutions who though they vastly outnumber their colleagues in more prestigious institutions have little voice in the profession It examines the structures through which the institution of literary critical pressures its members to accept orthodoxy heterodoxy as categories to describe their work which in turn provokes theory wars This opposition produces a method application dichotomy that renders members pursuits scientific

Experimental Writing in Composition Patricia Suzanne Sullivan, 2012-12-15 From the outset experimental writing has been viewed as a means to afford a more creative space for students to express individuality underrepresented social realities and criticisms of dominant socio political discourses and their institutions Yet the recent trend toward multimedia texts has left many composition instructors with little basis from which to assess these new forms and to formulate pedagogies In this original study Patricia Suzanne Sullivan provides a critical history of experimental writing theory and its aesthetic foundations and demonstrates their application to current multimodal writing Sullivan unpacks the work of major scholars in composition and rhetoric and their theories on aesthetics particularly avant gardism She also relates the dialectics that shape these aesthetics and sheds new light on both the positive and negative aspects of experimental writing and its attempts to redefine the writing disciplines Additionally she shows how current debates over the value of multimedia texts echo earlier arguments that pitted experimental writing against traditional models Sullivan further articulates the ways that multimedia is and isn t changing composition pedagogies and provides insights into resolving these tensions
