The Law Of Detainers:

The Law of Detainers David B. Wexler, 1973 The Law of Detainers David B. Wexler, 1973 The Law of Detainers
U.S. Department of Justice, David B. Wexler, 2002-12-01 A substantial number of inmates confined in our state and federal prisons face outstanding charges in other jurisdictions. Typically, those other jurisdictions will file detainers against such inmates. A detainer is a request by the demanding state that its law enforcement authorities be notified by the confining state when the inmate's sentence in the confining state is about to expire. The notification gives the demanding state sufficient time to extradite the prisoner to its jurisdiction if it chooses to prosecute him on the outstanding charge. Prisoners subject to detainers have often had to suffer disabilities because of the detainers and have often experienced difficulty in arranging for speedy trials on their outstanding charges. Recently, there has been considerable legal activity regarding the law of detainers and the current state of the law is elaborate and complex. The following materials discuss the legal contours of the detainer problem and explore the way in which the legal process has responded to the difficult issues posed. Hopefully, the materials may shed some light on this murky area and may be of particular use to inmates subject to detainers and to the lawyers and law students representing them. Originally published by the U.S. Department of Justice in 1973, this work includes much information that is still useful for prisoners and their lawyers today. The Law of Detainers David B. Wexler, 1973 The Law of Detainers David Barry Wexler, 1973 Harvard Law Review: Volume 127, Number 8 - June 2014 Harvard Law Review, 2014-06-10 Harvard Law Review Number 8 June 2014 includes an extensive Symposium on Freedom of the Press as well as an article "The Criminal Court Audience in a Post-Trial World" by Jocelyn Simonson and a book review essay "The Positive Foundations of Formalism: False Necessity and American Legal Realism" by Lawrence B. Solum. Specifically, the Symposium on press freedoms features "Introduction: Reflections on the First Amendment and the Information Economy" by Mark Tushnet, "The New New York Times: Free Speech, Lawyering in the Age of Google and Twitter" by Marvin Ammori, "Old School, New School: Speech Regulation" by Jack M. Balkin, "First Amendment Common Sense" by Susan Crawford, "More than a Feeling: Emotion and the First Amendment" by Rebecca Tushnet, "Press Exceptionalism" by Sonja R. West. The issue includes these student contributions: "Note: Congressional Control of Foreign Assistance to Post-Coup States," "Note: A Bad Man Is Hard to Find," "Note: Mediation of Investor-State Conflicts." In addition, case notes explore recent cases on such subjects as the FCC power to create Open Internet rules, whether enforcement of a foreign judgment is state action, and threat convictions in internet free speech cases, as well as recent legislation on immigration law and local entity compliance in California. The issue includes several recent publications summaries. Finally, as the final issue of volume 127, it contains a comprehensive Index of each article, essay, book review, and student work from the year. The Harvard Law Review is offered in a quality digital edition featuring active Contents, linked notes, active URLs in notes, and proper ebook and Bluebook formatting.
