Music for performance has different needs than music for study. It must be easy to read and understand and it must be formatted so as not to impede the musician's efforts to interpret the notes into musical sound. This book outlines step by step the ways of acquiring, processing, cataloging and preparing music for performance. While focusing primarily on music for large ensembles like orchestra and chorus, author Russ Girsberger also includes concepts that apply to wind, jazz and chamber ensembles. The material is logically organized, detailing information on purchasing or renting music, cataloging and processing scores, numbering, marking, binding and shelving parts and preparing and distributing the music for rehearsal or performance. Additional duties such as describing necessary information on preparing concert programs and audition lists and caring for and preserving the library's holdings are also covered. The manual concludes with a glossary, an annotated bibliography and an appendix which features sample forms for cataloging and circulating the library's materials. Community Custodians of Popular Music's Past Sarah Baker, 2017-09-22 This book examines do it yourself DIY approaches to the collection, preservation and display of popular music heritage being undertaken by volunteers in community archives, museums and halls of fame globally. DIY institutions of popular music heritage are much more than unofficial versions of official institutions; rather, they invoke a complex network of affect and sociality and are sites where interested people, often enthusiasts, are able to assemble around shared goals related to the preservation of and ownership over the material histories of popular music culture. Drawing on interviews and observations with founders, volunteers and heritage workers in 23 DIY institutions in Australasia, Europe and North America, the book highlights the potentialities of bottom-up, community-based interventions into the archiving and preservation of popular music's material history. It reveals the kinds of collections being housed in these archives, how they are managed and maintained, and explores their relationship to mainstream heritage institutions. The study also considers the cultural labor of volunteers in the DIY institution, arguing that while these are places concerned with heritage management and the preservation of artefacts, they are also extensions of musical communities in the present in which activities around popular music preservation have personal, cultural, community and heritage benefits. By looking at volunteers' everyday interventions in the archiving and curating of popular music's material past, the book highlights how DIY institutions build upon national heritage strategies at the community level and have the capacity to contribute to the democratization of popular music heritage. This book will have a broad appeal to a range of scholars in the fields of popular music studies, musicology, ethnomusicology, archive studies and archival science, museum studies, critical heritage studies, cultural studies, cultural sociology and media studies.
