Social Foundations Of The Mass Media:

Social Foundations of the Mass Media Walter M. Brasch, Dana R. Ulloa, 2001 Social Foundations of the Mass Media is a historical examination of the intellectual debate over the extent of permissible freedom that should be allowed for the expression and discussion of conflicting ideas. The treatment begins with the ancient Egyptian concepts, extends through Middle Eastern writings, treats the Inquisition, and concludes with modern concepts in the United States. Both the church and the state have long desired to repress dissident opinion, fearing that their authority would be undermined. They have used persecution, laws, the courts, and public opinion to try to impose their ideas upon an unwilling population. Thinkers from Aristotle to Zechariah Chafee Jr., the renowned legal scholar at Harvard University, and Hugo Black, former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, have had much to say about the role of journalists, writers, and dissidents. Each of their ideas and those of many others appear in Social Foundations of the Mass Media. The debate will continue well into the future, but the issues that have been raised over the centuries remain central to the debate today. Mass Media James B. Martin, 2002 Mass media has become an integral part of the human experience. News travels around the world in a split second, affecting people in other countries in untold ways. Although being on top of the news may be good at least for news junkies, mass media also transmits values or the lack thereof, condenses complex events and thoughts to simplified sound bites, and often ignores the essence of an event or story. The selective bibliography gathers the books and magazine literature over the previous ten years, while providing access through author title and subject indexes. Mass Media in Sub-Saharan Africa Louise M. Bourgault, 1995-06-22 Bourgault mass communication Northern Michigan U Marquette analyzes the historical, political, economic, social, cultural, and stylistic factors that have shaped media products in African radio, television, and newspapers. She investigates the three major influences of the precolonial legacy: the oral tradition, the presence of an alienated managerial class, and the domination of African nations by systems based on patronage, and looks at recent developments in technology and the move toward privatization.
