Johnson, Scott G. Eberle, Thomas S. Because play is an activity that humans have shared across time place and culture and in their personal developmental timelines and because this behavior stretches deep into the evolutionary past no single discipline can lay claim to exclusive rights to study the subject. Thus this handbook features the thinking of evolutionary psychologists ethologists and biologists neuroscientists developmental psychologists psychotherapists and play therapists historians sociologists and anthropologists cultural psychologists philosophers theorists of music performance and dance specialists in learning and language acquisition and playground designers. Together but out of their varied understandings the incisive contributions to The Handbook take on vital questions of educational policy of literacy of fitness of the role of play in brain development of spontaneity and pleasure of well being and happiness of fairness and of the fuller realization of the self. These volumes also comprise an intellectual history retrospective looks at the great thinkers who have made possible the modern study of play.
