The Demographic Transition And Womens Lifecourse In Colombia:

The Demographic Transition and Women's Life-course in Colombia Carmen Elisa Flórez Nieto, Rafael Echeverri Perico, 1990 Textile Workers in Brazil and Argentina Liliana Acero, Claudia Minoliti, Alejandra Rotania, 1991 The Continuing Demographic Transition G. W. Jones, R. M. Douglas, J. C. Caldwell, R. M. D'Souza, 1998-01-29 From the perspective of human society one of the most significant occurrences of the twentieth century has been the demographic transition the movement from tragic and wastefully high death and birth rates to low rates in many countries Many other countries however are still at only the early or intermediate stages of this process In these countries means need to be found to accelerate the transition This book brings new evidence to bear on aspects of the demographic transition with contributions from leading demographers anthropologists sociologists and historians The book ranges widely over the history and current experience of both developed and developing countries with particular emphasis on Asia and Africa The new field of anthropological demography is strongly represented with contributions challenging much conventional wisdom

Migration to the Arab World Godfrey Gunatilleke, 1991 The Impact of Labour Migration on Households Godfrey Gunatilleke, 1992 UNDOC, Current Index, 1995 Mega-city Growth and the Future Roland J. Fuchs, 1994 This book examines a range of issues related to the mega city phenomenon Part one deals with the growth of mega cities and explores demographic issues labour force change in the big cities of Asia the effect of macroeconomic forces on the world city system and the relations between technology and the city In part two the discussion focuses on the economic and social consequences of mega city growth Part three looks at the crucial issue of the management of mega cities taking up such issues as infrastructure financing land and shelter needs transportation and environmental management The final chapter examines priority urban management issues in developing countries and derives a research agenda for the 1990s Adapted by the author The Fertility Transition in Latin America José Miguel Guzmán, 1996 The 1960s saw the start of a sustained process of declining fertility in Latin America resulting from radical social attitudinal and economic changes There has been a clear trend towards more or less generalized behaviour of regulating fertility coincident with a rise in the availability and use of methods of contraception There are however important differences between and within the countries of the region which are analysed in full in this volume Whether one stratifies by demographic factors place of residence education or social status from the beginning of the transition it seems that a variety of reproductive patterns were in existence It is also clear that the process of transition is not yet complete and that in some important social groups fertility is still high This volume studies the process of transition from high to low fertility as it has occurred and is occurring in Latin America It provides a general comparative overview of transition in the region in which the link between socio economic development and declining fertility is explored There are sections on the process through which the transition occurs social determinants of fertility change and the consequences of fertility decline Large data sets from census and survey results for many countries and points in time are presented in over 150 tables and figures The comparative analyses are complemented by five individual country studies in the final section Abstracts on Rural Development in the Tropics ,1992 UNU Publications United Nations University,1994
