Context: Families with high rates of childhood adversities (CAs) (multi problem families, MPF) have an increasing importance in public health-policy.

Objective: The present study addresses the relationship between risk- and protective factors and the severity and treatment-outcome of mental disorders.

Setting: Family-therapeutic home-based treatment for MPF. We examined a clinical sample ($N = 1031$) of children between the age of 4 to 17, and a non-clinical sample of 148 children. We hypothesized that of all children of the clinical group have a predominance of risk factors and a higher number of psychopathological symptoms. Furthermore, we hypothesized that children with a predominance of protective factors benefit stronger from psychotherapy.

Main Results: In the clinical sample, most children met the criteria of a psychopathological diagnosis (95.7%, as compared to 21.6% in the non-clinical sample) and showed significant higher rates of CAs and significant less protective factors as compared to the non-clinical sample. The clinical group showed a significant reduction of psychopathological symptoms and benefited equally well from treatment. The number of risk factors was a significant predictor for a child from the non-clinical sample to meet the criteria of a psychopathological diagnosis, while the number of protective factors significantly predicted the absence thereof.

Conclusion: Children and adolescents with high scores of CAs show significant associations with child psychiatric symptoms ($d = 0.35$; including all ICD-diagnosis such as, e.g., Asperger Syndrome, ADHD etc. with a higher rate of genetic etiology). Early life stressors, however, do not trigger an irreversible fate, as psychotherapy with young people with high numbers of risk factors does help to reduce psychopathological symptoms significantly (range of five outcome parameters: $d = 0.31$ – 0.72).

The Development Of A Child Psychiatric Treatment Program:

The Development of a Child Psychiatric Treatment Program Helen K. Grace, 1974 Child Psychiatric Treatment Philip G. Ney, Deanna L. Mulvihill, 2018-09-21 Whilst there was a large number of primary care staff wanting to treat psychiatrically ill children they lacked adequate training There was in the past an insufficient number of prescribable measurable techniques to aid any training in this field of work This resulted in confusion and apathy amongst staff together with long periods of treatment which often weakened family relationships Originally published in 1985 this book was designed to equip all professionals dealing with emotionally or behaviourally disturbed children and their families with practical methods and techniques It demonstrates how staff can work more effectively when each child and family being treated has a detailed treatment programme each component of which can be readily understood and measured The 61 techniques included in this handbook were developed over many years during the authors experience in Canada Hong Kong and New Zealand

Emotional Disorders in Children and Adolescents G. Pirooz Sholevar, Ronald M. Benson, Barton J. Blinder, 2013-10-22 Emotional Disorders in Children and Adolescents states that individual psychotherapy is a nonspecific label It is done when two people interact in a prolonged series of emotionally charged encounters with the purpose of changing the behavior of the dyad The motives and dynamics of individual psychotherapy are explained in detail as well as the history of the approach The book discussed the concept of child psychoanalysis This section includes its historical background the similarities and differences between child and adult psychoanalysis the age of the child that should be treated and frequency of treatment The text also covers some techniques in the application of psychoanalysis A broad section of the volume is focused on the modification of the child s behavior as a type of treatment This chapter is followed by a section on the behavioral approaches in adolescent psychiatry The book will provide useful information to psychologist psychiatrist behavioral specialist students and researchers in the field of psychology National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1971 Handbook of Evidence-Based Day Treatment Programs for Children and Adolescents Jarrod M. Leffler, Elisabeth A. Day Treatment for Children with Emotional Disorders G.K. Farley,S.G. Zimet,2013-11-11 The life span of day treatment for children in the United States is relatively short covering a period of about 50 years Although the first 20 years saw little growth in the number of centers operating around the country the concept of day treatment was recognized by the Joint Commission on Mental Illness and Health in 1961 as the most significant treatment innovation of this century Enthusiasm for this treatment modality gained impetus from growing dissatisfaction among many mental health care providers who had no choice but to place children in a highly restrictive hospital environment Day treatment did not carry the stigma associated with inpatient placement The children could now remain with their own families and within their own communities The parents could be actively included in their child's treatment This new modality avoided the short and long term negative effects of institutionalization and there was a favorable cost discrepancy between day and inpatient mental health services In more recent years there has been growing evidence of the efficacy of day treatment as an intensive therapeutic environment for children and their parents Despite these advantages day treatment has continued to be underutilized in favor of inpatient treatment by both the psychiatric community and third party payers Only recently is it being acknowledged by some insurers as a therapeutically sound and financially advantageous alternative to inpatient services Consequently it is showing signs of intense growth nationally
