Emotional Labour in Criminal Justice and Criminology Jake Phillips, Jaime Waters, Chalen Westaby, Andrew Fowler, 2020-06-04 This book is the first volume to explore criminal justice work and criminological research through the lens of emotional labour A concept first coined 30 years ago emotional labour seeks to explore the ways in which people manage their emotions in order to achieve the aims of their organisations and the subsequent impact of this is on workers and service users The chapters in this edited collection explore work in a wide range of criminal justice institutions as well as the penal voluntary sector In addition to literature review chapters which consolidate what we already know this book includes case study chapters which extend our knowledge of how emotional labour is performed in specific contexts and in relation to certain types of work Emotional Labour in Criminal Justice and Criminology covers topics such as prisoners who die from natural causes in prison to the work of independent domestic violence advisors and the use of emotion by death penalty lawyers in the US. An accessible and compelling read, this book presents ground-breaking qualitative and quantitative research which will be critical to criminologists, criminal justice practitioners, students of criminology and academics in the fields of social policy and public service.

Sentencing and Society Cyrus Tata, Neil Hutton, 2017-03-02. Combining the latest work of leading sentencing and punishment scholars from twelve different countries, this major new international volume answers key questions in the study of sentencing and society. It presents not only a rigorous examination of the latest legal and empirical research from around the world but also reveals the workings of sentencing within society and as a social practice. Traditionally, work in the field of sentencing has been dominated by legal and philosophical approaches. Distinctively, this volume provides a more sociological approach to sentencing, so allowing previously unanswered questions to be addressed and new questions to be opened. This extensive collection is drawn from around one third of the papers presented at the First International Conference on Sentencing and Society. Almost without exception, the chapters have been revised, cross-referenced and updated. The overall themes and findings of the international volume are set out by the opening Introduction and the closing Reflections chapters. Research findings on particular penal policy questions are balanced with an analysis of fundamental conceptual issues, making this international volume essential reading for sentencing and punishment scholars, criminal justice policy makers and graduate students.

Abolition in Social Work and Human Services Ian Hyslop, Bob Pease, 2025-09-11. Globally, social workers are committed to human rights and challenging unjust social structures. However, their close ties to the state often reinforce such systems of oppression. The first to apply abolitionist theory from international perspectives to social work, this book examines this contradiction, exploring whether social work can embrace radical change while operating within state structures. Bringing together scholars from the United States, Canada, England, Ireland, Scotland, Finland, Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand, it explores alternatives for addressing issues such as child protection, mental health, violence against women, drug use, violent extremism, homelessness and Indigenous sovereignty. Essential reading for academics, researchers, students, human service practitioners and social activists, this book interrogates the implications of social work's complicity with systems that perpetuate oppression and social injustice.

Co-production and Criminal Justice Diana Johns, Catherine Flynn, Maggie Hall, Claire Spivakovsky, Shelley Turner, 2022-08-09 This book explores practical examples of co production in criminal justice research and practice Through a series of seven case studies the authors examine what people do when they co produce knowledge in criminal justice contexts in prisons and youth detention centres with criminalised women from practitioners perspectives and with First Nations communities Co production holds a promise that people whose lives are entangled in the criminal justice system can be valued as participants and partners helping to shape how the system works But how realistic is it to imagine criminal justice service users participating partnering and sharing genuine decision making power with those explicitly holding power over them Taking a sophisticated yet accessible theoretical approach the authors consider issues of power hierarchy and different ways of knowing to understand the perils and possibilities of co production under the shadow of justice In exploring these complexities this book brings cautious optimism to co production partners and project leaders The book provides a foundational text for scholars and practitioners seeking to apply co production principles in their research and practice With stories from Australia the United Kingdom and Ireland the text will appeal to the international community

For students of criminology and social work the book s critical insights will enhance their work in the field
