Sari Hanhinen & Jukka Törrönen (eds.): Journalists, administrators and business people on social problems. A study around the Baltic Sea. NAD publication No. 35, Helsinki 1998, 259 pp.

Jacek Moskalewicz & Christoffer Tigerstedt (eds.): Public Opinion on Social Problems. A survey around the Baltic Sea. NAD publication No. 36, Helsinki 1998, 227 pp.

The two books above represent numbers three and four in a series of publications released by the Baltica project. The Baltica project, initiated by the Nordic Council for Alcohol and Drug Research, examines changes in the prevalence and perceptions of social problems in the countries around the Baltic Rim from a variety of angles. The first book from the project, published in 1992, contained a general discussion of social problems and the research of such problems in the countries bordering the Baltic Sea, with a focus on alcohol problems in particular (Simpura & Tigerstedt 1992). The second book from the project contained an analysis of how social problems are represented in the newspapers of most of those same countries (Lagerstedt 1994). Of these present books, while the former considers how influential people – represented by journalists, administrators and business people – view social problems, the latter presents results from a survey on citizens' opinions of social problems.

Both of these studies share a common theoretical foundation, namely, contextual constructivism. Furthermore, both studies are concerned with the collective processes in which social problems are constructed. By providing context, they also seek to present some of the objective realities which act as limitations on the process of social construction. In addition, both of the studies are comparative, as they consist of a number of country studies in which each country's uniqueness is underlined by contrasting it to the other countries.

The book on journalists', administrators' and business people's perceptions of social problems uses a triangular model as the theoretical framework of the study. This triangle consists of the state, the market and civil society. The study proceeds to examine how influential people construct social problems, and with what kind of cultural frames they determine the responsibilities between the state, markets and civil society in preventing and treating social problems. Focus group interviews were arranged with influential persons in Estonia, Finland, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, and the city of St. Petersburg. The triangle was partitioned in such a way that while the administrators were thought to represent the state and the business people to represent the market, the journalists were selected as the societal mediators of citizens' relations to both the state and the markets. As such, the journalists were conceived of as being well informed on citizens' overall sentiments.

As themes for the group discussions, the researchers selected social problems, in general, and alcohol problems, in particular. In some of the country studies, environmental issues were also included. In each country a country team or person was responsible for the interviews. In the editors' estimations, the validity of the comparisons of the data had been guaranteed (my italics) by arranging joint working
