The Deaf Experience An Anthology Of Literature By And About The Deaf:

The Deaf Experience Trenton W. Batson, Eugene Bergman, 1973 Deafness, Deprivation, and IQ Jeffery P.

Braden, 2013-03-14 Deafness is a low incidence disability and therefore not studied or understood in the same way as other disabilities. Historically research in deafness has been conducted by a small group of individuals who communicated mainly with each other. That is not to say that we did not sometimes publish in the mainstream or attempt to communicate outside our small circle. Nonetheless most research appeared in deafness related publications where it was not likely to be seen or valued by psychologists. Those researchers did not understand what they could learn from the study of deaf people or how their knowledge of individual differences and abilities applied to that population. In Deafness Deprivation Jeffery Braden pulls together two often unrelated fields: studies of intelligence and deafness. The book includes the largest single compilation of data describing deaf people's intelligence that exists. Here is a careful, well documented and very thorough analysis of virtually all the research available. Those who have studied human intelligence have long noted that deafness provides a natural experiment. This book makes evident two contrary results: on the one hand some research points to the impact deafness has on intelligence; on the other hand the research supports the fact that deafness has very little if any impact on nonverbal measures of intelligence.

Angels and Outcasts Trenton W. Batson,Eugene Bergman,1985 This is a fascinating enjoyable book It could well be used in study groups at the high school or college level to explore both history and attitudes toward deafness Rehabilitation Literature The editors are not enthralled as so many of us seem to be simply that deaf or disabled characters exist in literature they ask why The rest of the disability movement could learn from them The Disability Rag Dickens Welty and Turgenev are only three of the master storytellers in Angels and Outcasts This remarkable collection of 14 short stories offers insights into what it means to be deaf in a hearing world The book is divided into three parts the first section explores works by nineteenth century authors the second section concentrates on stories by twentieth century authors and the final section focuses on stories by authors who are themselves deaf Each section begins with an introduction by the editors and each story is preceded by a preface Angels and Outcasts concludes with an annotated bibliography of other prose works about the deaf experience In addition to fascinating reading it provides valuable insights into the world of the deaf Trent Batson is Director of Academic Technology at Gallaudet University Eugene Bergman former Associate professor of English at Gallaudet University is now retired
