Sebastián Felipe Villamizar-Santamaría, 2024-05-08 This book takes the small rural town of La Calera in the outskirts of the Colombian capital of Bogotá as a case study to analyze how residents from different social classes wealthier ex urban newcomers arriving to traditionally peasant and rural areas interact to decide how nature will be used in the face of further urban expansion Contrary to the conflicts in other gentrification cases including those of green gentrification this book shows how newcomers and longtimers in La Calera use environmental concerns to bridge social class rifts and push the state to provide water public space and decision making power Residents see abundant ecological resources like water and land around them but they do not have access to aqueducts green public space or power over planning decisions affecting the distribution of these resources As a response and to challenge the state more effectively newcomers and longtimers create inter class alliances through what the author calls third nature the way residents try to both protect and keep using existing ecological goods To do so despite high levels of class inequality residents had a similar goal of protecting ecological resources around them by intervening in the physical and political landscapes against a state that induces scarcity selectively enforcing environmental policies to the detriment of Calerunos As cities all around the Global South continue to grow urban expansion posits a threat to the environment by transforming agricultural and protected areas into denser residential or touristic spaces Moreover as natural resources become scarcer in the face of climate change inequality might further existing environmental privileges and vulnerabilities By examining closely how Calerunos bridge class inequalities for environmental reasons this case highlights processes that inform other gentrifying rural spaces around the world The Ministry, Vol. 02, No. 08 Various Authors, 1998-08-01 In this issue of The Ministry we include a collection of short messages spoken by Brother Lee at different times and in different places throughout the United States between 1969 and 1972 concerning migration These messages emphasize the twofold need in the Lord's recovery in this country to build up a strong large and adequate testimony in a metropolitan city as a center and from such a center to spread the church life to the strategic cities throughout the whole country Following this are six messages from the Crystallization study of the Epistle to the Hebrews which were given in the Living Stream Ministry's Summer Training of 1998 The major crystals presented during this time of training can be expressed in the following statements The believers in Christ should be river crossers following the Lord Jesus the Pioneer and Forerunner into the glorious expression of the Divine Being Christ as the Captain of salvation is leading God's many sons into glory the corporate expression of God by saving them organically through sanctification Christ our High Priest ministers to us whatever we need dispensing Himself into us as our supply for the fulfillment of God's eternal purpose and we need to be brought on to maturity pursuing toward the fullest enjoyment and gaining of Christ for the uttermost enjoyment of Christ in the millennial kingdom Lastly we include a number of letters of appreciation concerning The Stream magazine in the Spanish language El Manantial Due to necessary adjustments in the schedule for producing this
