SADAT ASSASSINATED

Egypt's president slain by 6 soldiers

Attack at parade kills 7 others

By Douglas Watson
The Staff Correspondent

Cairo—Egyptian President Anwar el Sadat, a leader admired by most of the world for making peace with Israel, was assassinated yesterday by six Egyptian soldiers during a military parade.

Military sources in Cairo reported that the assassins were Muslim fundamentalists. Their objectives and political affiliations were still being worked out yesterday.

The attack on the Egyptian president left 7 others dead and 27 wounded. Most of the victims were seated near President Sadat in the reviewing stand during the annual parade marking the October 6 anniversary of the Egyptian army's decisive victory of the Six Day war eight years ago in its last war with Israel.

President Sadat, 61, was wearing the black military uniform of the commander in chief of the Egyptian armed forces, and the five of them rushed toward his seat, where he was struck twice by a hail of bullets fired by the six soldiers wearing blue berets who rushed from a passing military truck toward the reviewing stand.

The fallen leader was rushed to the Shouk military hospital by helicopter.

He never recovered.
