Supporting Information And Communications Technology:

EBOOK: Supporting ICT in the Early Years John Siraj-Blatchford, David Whitebread, 2003-10-16 This book is an excellent resource for gaining understanding about the fundamental principles of ICT in the Foundation Stage curriculum. The principles of good practice in this book will not be outdated by new products or trends. The book is a well balanced blend of theory and application. It has certainly helped to provoke and resolve ideas about the use of ICT in our settings. Nursery World. This book helps readers understand how very young children from birth to six develop an early awareness and subsequently develop their knowledge skills and understandings of information and communication technologies (ICTs). The rapid growth of ICT has prompted concerns among parents, educators and policy makers over the suitability of many educational applications and electronic toys for young children. However, evidence is presented to show that the use of ICT by young children is compatible with the principles of a developmentally appropriate curriculum (DAC). In fact, the authors argue that used imaginatively, many applications of ICT can make a significant and unique contribution to children's social and cognitive development. This is a significant book for students, parents, carers, teachers and other professionals who want to provide a rich learning environment in education and in teaching and supervising research in the early years. Supporting

Information and Communications Technology Mike Farmer, Gina Farmer, 2013-12-19 First Published in 2001. This practical guide supports classroom assistants in the use of ICT. It provides support in the practical issues linked to using a computer and other ICT equipment in the classroom; use of early years software linked to National Curriculum and Early Learning Goals; outcomes of use of ICT in literacy, numeracy, science, art and design; and children with special educational needs. Personal use of ICT linked to where it can contribute to classroom practice. It can be used as a stand alone guide or in conjunction with study on classroom assistant training programmes. Supporting ICT in the Early Years John

Siraj-Blatchford, David Whitebread, 2003-10-01 The primary aim of this new volume in the Supporting Early Learning series is to help readers understand how very young children from birth to six develop an early awareness and subsequently develop their knowledge skills and understandings of information and communication technologies (ICTs). The rapid growth of ICT has prompted concerns among parents, educators and policy makers over the suitability of many educational applications and electronic toys for young children. However, evidence is presented to show that the use of ICT by young children is compatible with the principles of a developmentally appropriate curriculum (DAC). In fact, the authors argue that used imaginatively, many applications of ICT can make a significant and unique contribution to children's social and cognitive development. The authors show how parents and other carers, teachers and other professionals are already providing a rich learning environment in this area of experience. Information and Communications Technology in Support of Migration
