

A sepia-toned photograph of a steam locomotive pulling a passenger train. The locomotive is on the left, moving towards the right, with a large plume of dark smoke billowing from its smokestack. The train tracks curve into the distance. The background is a hazy, light-colored sky. The overall tone is historical and nostalgic.

Slow Train To Paradise How Dutch Investment Helped Build American Railroads:

Slow Train to Paradise A. J. Veenendaal, 1996 Railroad historians have long been aware of Dutch investment in the building of American railroads but how extensive was that investment This text reveals that because of the frequent failure of railroad companies to meet their debt obligations several railroads were for a time completely in Dutch control Though Dutch capitalists initially believed they had discovered a shortcut to El Dorado by buying American railroad securities it turned out that only long term investment brought financial paradise within their reach This book is a history of Dutch investment in American railroads up to World War 1 telling in detail not only why the Dutch invested in US railroads but also in which companies and how much they invested Introductory chapters survey the Dutch capital market from the late 18th century until World War 1 and appendices provide information on individual Dutch brokers and their financial activities The Industry and Subsistency Larry Hasse, 2017-07-31 The people of the Camas Valley in Washington State were founded in two socioeconomic streams as they survived the Great Depression of the 1930s and moved into the war years of the 1940s. The theoretical foundation of this history asserts the existence of a perpetual socioeconomic process of relationship between two interacting streams of human culture: Premodern subsistency whereby persons utilize their immediate material environment to make family livings and the modernizing commercial industrial culture whereby people incrementally move beyond subsistency to a convenient level of commerce, manufacture and urban specialization. By this understanding throughout the flow of times and places of human society a rise and fall of progress and regress exists. Here in this place and time the relationship between the industry of Spokane and the agriculture of Stevens County provided the dynamic. This book is intended for academic and general readers alike. It includes extensive endnotes identifying the information used in creating this micro history of agriculture and industry in the Inland Pacific Northwest. The author hopes the book will be interesting and informative to the descendants of the people who built a life in a swath of hinterland reaching from the city of Spokane to the end of Camas Valley and beyond in Stevens County.

Law, Infrastructure and Human Rights Michael B. Likosky, 2006-10-30. From attacks on oil infrastructure in post war reconstruction Iraq to the laying of gas pipelines in the Amazon Rainforest through indigenous community villages, infrastructure projects are sites of intense human rights struggles. Many state and non state actors have proposed solutions for handling human rights problems in the context of specific infrastructure projects. Solutions have been admired for being lofty in principle however they have been judged wanting in practice. This book analyzes how human rights are handled in varied contexts and then assesses the feasibility of a common international institutional solution under the auspices of the United Nations to the alleged problem of the inability to translate human rights into practice.
