

I'm Telling Myself

Practice catching the thoughts that trigger strong emotions.

Write down your thoughts exactly as they play out in your mind.

Notice the judgmental language: "I should"

Notice the exaggerating language:
"I always" / "You never"

Notice the victim language: "I have to"

Write these with the phrase "I'm telling myself" in front of the thought and put the phrase, "and this may or may not be true" behind it.

Can you rewrite or reframe the thought so that it is more loving and supportive?

Eleven-year-old Raymond devises a plan to spend his summer proving to everyone how brave and confident he is, but will he really be able to change, or is it another lie he tells himself?      Stories I Tell Myself Juan F. Thompson, 2016-01-05

Hunter S. Thompson, a smart hillbilly boy of the South born and bred in Louisville, Kentucky, son of an insurance salesman and a stay-at-home mom, public school educated, jailed at seventeen on a bogus petty robbery charge, member of the U.S. Air Force Airmen Second Class, copy boy for Time, writer for The National Observer et cetera. From the outset, he was the Wild Man of American journalism with a journalistic appetite that touched on subjects that drove his sense of justice and intrigue: from biker gangs and 1960s counterculture to presidential campaigns and psychedelic drugs. He lived larger than life and pulled it up around him in a mad effort to make it as electric, anger-ridden, and drug-fueled as possible. Now Juan Thompson tells the story of his father and of their getting to know each other during their forty-one fraught years together. He writes of the many dark times of how far they ricocheted away from each other and of how they found their way back before it was too late. He writes of growing up in an old farmhouse in a narrow mountain valley outside of Aspen, Woody Creek, Colorado, a ranching community with Hereford cattle and clover fields, of the presence of guns in the house, the boxes of ammo on the kitchen shelves behind the glass doors of the country cabinets where others might have placed china and knickknacks, of climbing on the back of Hunter's Bultaco Matador trail motorcycle as a young boy, and father and son roaring up the dirt road trailing a cloud of dust, of being taken to bars in town as a small boy, Hunter holding court while Juan crawled around under the bar stools picking up change and taking his found loot to Carl's Pharmacy to buy Archie comic books, of going with his parents as a baby to a Ken Kesey Hells Angels party with dozens of people wandering around the forest in various stages of undress, stoned on pot, tripping on LSD. He writes of his growing fear of his father, of the arguments between his parents reaching frightening levels, and of his finally fighting back, trying to protect his mother as the state troopers are called in to separate father and son. And of the inevitable of mother and son driving west in their Datsun to make a new home, a new life away from Hunter. Of Juan's first taste of what normal could feel like. We see Juan going to Concord Academy, a stranger in a strange land, coming from a school that was a log cabin in the middle of hay fields. Juan, without manners or socialization, going on to college at Tufts, spending a crucial week with his father, Hunter, asking for Juan's opinion of his writing, and he writes of their dirt biking on a hilltop overlooking Woody Creek Valley, acting as if all the horrible things that had happened between them had never taken place, and of being there together side by side. And finally, movingly, he writes of their long, slow pull toward reconciliation, of Juan's marriage and the birth of his own son, of watching Hunter love his grandson, and Juan's coming to understand how Hunter loved him, of Hunter's growing illness, and Juan's becoming both son and father to his father.      The Story I Tell
