Telling Our Stories Theresa Kristina Barron-McKeagney, 1993

La Comunidad Latina in the United States David T. Abalos, 1998-05-26 La comunidad Latina the fastest growing ethnic group in the United States has long been told that assimilation is the only way to succeed in American society This book challenges that generally accepted view and concludes instead that transformation as a way of life is the only viable option for the Latino community as a whole regardless of racial class regional or religious differences It highlights how in the everyday life of la comunidad Latina the members of the community can recognize the underlying ways of life the stories and the patterns of relationships that cripple them and how to break with these ways of life stories and relationships to create fundamentally more loving and compassionate alternatives Along with all men and women Latinos and Latinas face four choices retaining a blind loyalty to a romanticized past assimilating violating each other or transforming their ethnic and racial group for the better This examination of the underlying sacred meaning of the stories of the Latino culture attempts to determine whether these stories are destructive or creative Now coming of age la comunidad Latina previously wounded by assimilation continues to tell its story in art literature history and religion so that the world may perhaps for the first time see its personal political historical and sacred faces The most important story now being lived is that of Latina women and Latino men who are making choices that will determine the ultimate meaning of a new Latino culture in this nation The Latinx Guide to Graduate School Genevieve Negrón-Gonzales, Magdalena L. Barrera, 2023-01-30 In The Latinx Guide to Graduate School Genevieve Negrón-Gonzales and Magdalena L. Barrera provide prospective and current Latinx graduate students in the humanities and social sciences fields with a roadmap for surviving and thriving in advanced degree programs They document the unwritten rules of graduate education that impact Latinx students demystifying and clarifying the essential requirements for navigating graduate school that Latinx students may not know because they are often the first in their families to walk that path Topics range from identifying the purpose of graduate research finding the right program and putting together a strong application to developing a graduate student identity cultivating professional and personal relationships and mapping out a post graduate school career The book also includes resources for undocumented students Equal parts how to guide personal reflection manifesto and academic musing this book gives a culturally resonant perspective that speaks to the unique Latinx graduate student experience

Chicana/Latina Testimonios as Pedagogical, Methodological, and Activist Approaches to Social Justice Dolores Delgado Bernal, Rebeca Burciaga, Judith Flores Carmona, 2017-10-02 While the genre of testimonio has deep roots in oral cultures and in Latin American human rights struggles the publication and subsequent adoption of This Bridge Called My Back Moraga Anzaldúa 1983 and more recently Telling to Live Latina Feminist Testimonios Latina Feminist Group 2001 have demonstrated the power of testimonio as a genre that exposes brutality disrupts silencing and builds solidarity among women of colour Within the field of education scholars are increasingly taking up testimonio as a pedagogical methodological and activist approach to social justice which transgresses traditional paradigms in academia Unlike the more usual approach of researchers producing unbiased knowledge the testimonio challenges objectivity by situating the individual in communion with a collective experience marked by marginalization oppression or resistance This approach has resulted in new understandings about how marginalized communities build solidarity and respond to and resist dominant culture laws and policies that perpetuate inequity This book contributes to our understanding of testimonio as it relates to methodology pedagogy research and reflection in pursuit of social justice A common thread among the chapters is a sense of political urgency to address inequities within Chicana/o and Latina/o communities This book was originally published as a special issue of Equity Excellence in Education

Tilley-Lubbs, Silvia Bénard Calva, 2016-07-08 This book presents the collaborative work of two professors one in Mexico and the other in the United States and their respective students participants in a Ph D course called Critical Autoethnography The chapters emerged from virtual conversations as doctoral students and professors examined the intersections between critical pedagogy and autoethnography They problematized the cultural and theoretical intersections between the participants in both countries questioning whether their differences were causes or results of power and privilege They used dialogue as inquiry to interrogate the theoretical perspectives that framed their prior experiences They realized that these perspectives reflected their cultures and that although they often intersected they diverged at times The fluidity of the learning experience shaped the chapters that form the book sections including the theory and the praxis or exemplars of performing critical autoethnography Each author explores personal experiences or events through the lens of critical pedagogy underscoring the problematization of the cultural and societal context that shaped their actions in particular as they performed in racial ethnic and religious settings that reflected power and privilege The two professors served as editors and authors as they engaged in constant iterative peer review and dialogue Both the Mexican and the United States perspectives are reflected throughout the book and it is this global perspective that separates this book from others that deal with similar topics Feminist Pedagogy, Practice, and Activism Jennifer Martin, Ashley E.
