Smith, 1985      Advocacy Journalists Edd Applegate, 2009-05-11 This book focuses on the lives of journalists and editors who contributed to advocacy journalism Each entry contains biographical information about the journalists their professional careers major works and in some cases commentary on those works      But Now I See Fred Hobson, 1999-04-01

The term conversion narrative usually refers to a particular form of expression that arose in Puritan New England in the seventeenth century. In that sense the purely religious conversion narrative belongs to a rather remote history. But in this lucid pathbreaking work Fred Hobson uses the expression in another sense in the realm of the secular to describe a much more recent phenomenon one originating in the American South and marking a new mode of southern self expression not seen until the 1940s. Hobson applies the term racial conversion narrative to several autobiographies or works of highly personal social commentary by Lillian Smith, James McBride Dabbs, Katharine Du Pre Lumpkin, Sarah Patton Boyle, Will Campbell, Larry L. King, Willie Morris, Pat Watters, and other southerners' books written between the mid 1940s and the late 1970s in which the authors all products of and willing participants in a harsh segregated society confess racial wrongdoings and are converted in varying degrees from racism to something approaching racial enlightenment. Indeed the language of many of these works is Hobson points out the language of religious conversion: sin, guilt, blindness, seeing the light, repentance, redemption, and so forth. Hobson also looks at recent autobiographical volumes by Ellen Douglas, Elizabeth Spencer, and Rick Bragg to show how the medium persists if in a somewhat different form even at the very end of the twentieth century. But Now I See is a study both of this particular variety of the southern impulse to self examination and of those who seem to have retained the habit of seeking redemption even if of a secular variety. Departing from the old vertical southern religion salvation centered with heaven as its goal, these racial converts embrace a horizontal religion which holds that getting right with man is at least as important as getting right with God. A refreshingly original treatment of racial change in the South, Hobson's provocative work introduces a new subgenre in the field of southern literature. Anyone interested in the history and literature of the American South will be fascinated by this searching volume.

Southern Cultures Harry L. Watson, Larry J. Griffin, 2008-04-28

What does redneck mean? What's going to happen to the southern accent? What makes black southerners laugh? What is real country music? These are the kinds of questions that pop up in this collection of notable essays from Southern Cultures, the journal of the Center for the Study of the American South at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Intentionally plural, Southern Cultures was founded in 1993 to present all sides of the American South from sorority sisters to Pocahontas, from kudzu to the blues. This volume collects 27 essays from the journal's first fifteen years, bringing together some of the most memorable and engaging essays as well as some of those most requested for use in courses. A stellar cast of contributors discusses themes of identity, pride, traditions, changes, conflicts, and stereotypes. Topics range from black migrants in Chicago to Mexican immigrants in North Carolina, from Tennessee wrestlers to Martin Luther King, from the Civil War to contemporary debates about the Confederate flag. Funny and serious, historical and contemporary, the collection offers something new for every South watcher with fresh perspectives on enduring debates about the people and cultures of America's most complex region.
