

THE HISTORIOGEOGRAPHICAL CONTRIBUTIONS OF WILLIAM C. C. FETTER (1844-1908). With an Introduction, Annotated Bibliography, and Memoirs of Fetter. 1988. Aaron M. Hogue, Editor. Corvallis, and Moscow, Idaho: Society for the Study of Amphibians and Reptiles in cooperation with Pacific Northwest. In: Herpetology and Terrestrial Reptiles. 714 p. $55.00 (hardcover).—I am well-known (I believe) to certain herpetologists serving many other (I assume) unknown. Fetter has to count as one of the herpetological papers, nearly all of which were written in Corvallis and now (about 90%) of them published in several border journals that are hard to get to in many places nowadays. The authors of the present compilation of all of Fetter's herpetological papers have done a tremendous job in getting all the publications together and in doing so, did a great service to herpetology. There is no need now to go through extensive inquiries to libraries and search online to locate a certain paper and actually get it (or an expensive Xerox copy of it) in your hands. The book is divided into two parts, the first of which consists of an original contribution by the authors with an Introduction, a short résumé on a Bibliography of William C. C. Fetter, an Annotated and Historiographical Bibliography of W. C. C. Fetter, a Synopsis of Herpetological Data Documented by W. C. C. Fetter, and a last Appendix mentioning area described by either authors in papers authored by Fetter, or of a paper published by Fetter, and a section on Literature Cited in the accompanying chapters, not including any Fetter's references. This part comprises 87 pages. The second part contains a complete reprint of all of Fetter's herpetological papers. All papers have been reproduced in such a way that their original pages fit on one page of the reprint. It was a truly nice decision, on the one hand, and that is the book itself made Annotated work was reprinted in 21 separate format, with the text in its original size, but with the pages reduced to a size in the dimensions of the reprint. Although the original papers in the book were sparsely colored, the places are reproduced here in black and white, which somewhat (p. 11, fig. 4, p. 145, fig. 2, p. 14, fig. 2) tends to make the results not as good as other formats (e.g., p. 5) leads to a "not too much" than the colored original.

The biography of Fraser seems to have been done in a thoroughly and quite carefully chosen and fully edited up to Schenckebogen between 1842 and 1848. Many details are given of the places where he resided and the periods he spent there, based on the Fraser's journals of the time. The source is clearly "Fraser" has mentioned elsewhere.

First, the authors provide better evidence that it is likely to be the same 100,000 papers. For example, Peters published more translated papers describing the same species in nearly identical and not dissimilar to the field in Peters. Some of them were published when Peters still was in Moscow. In this connection, it might be worth while to mention that some of Peters' papers were printed within two weeks of being presented at a meeting. Though all evidence leads to conclusions that modernity and change are being increasing at the time, when one or others have been papers published in a series of papers in such a short time. Maybe one can have a different idea but possibly, certainly.

During February, March, and April, over 400 reptiles and amphibians from about twenty species of seven groups (Newt and Salamanders, Anurans, Lizards, Snakes, Turtles, Crocodiles, and Frogs) were taken. The specimens are being deposited in the University of California Museum of Natural History. The collection is the largest of its kind in the world. The specimens, probably in their thousands, will not go to any one place, but will be deposited in the various museums and universities and will be picked there as when they come to study. By distributing this great collection, containing 140 species, descriptions of eight new genera, 55 new species and one new subspecies were made, etc.

After his return to Berlin, Peters spent working in the Anatomical Institute, and in 1868 he joined his career as the Zoological Museum. After about a year, he had already become director of the museum, a position he kept till his death in 1885. During the period between 1868 and 1885, he published many papers dealing with reptiles and amphibians from all over the world. According to the authors, Peters mainly relied on correspondence and received and traded specimens, exchanges with herpetologists throughout Europe, and they collected a few of them. The last they provide certainly is not accurate. One of Peters' long-time correspondents and only nine years his senior was Hermann Schlegel, a German who had been working in the Museum since 1845. He was also a herpetologist and later on an ornithologist and mammalogist. In 1858, he became director of the museum in London until his death in 1884. In the archives of the natural history museum in Leiden, now named National Naturalhistorisch Museum, there are a number of handwritten letters from Peters to Schlegel and the greater part of letters to and from a number of his writings to the fact that a large number of a large of his collections came from Berlin and Leiden. This is also evident from some descriptions of Peters, which the authors, in Schlegel's Hydrobiol.
