linguistic distribution of construction types are reviewed The behavior of comparatives under the conditions of language contact is discussed Data from more than 170 standard and nonstandard varieties of European languages are scrutinized systematically The synchronic picture is complemented by a chapter on the diachrony of comparative constructions The European facts are compared to those of the geographically adjacent Asian and African regions It is argued that cross linguistic investigations must take account also of so called secondary options These secondary options suggest strongly that the supposedly dominant role of the particle comparative cannot be upheld for Europe Moreover only the secondary options allow us to draw isoglosses which cross the borders between Europe and Asia and Africa     The Emergence of Distinctive Features Jeff Mielke, 2008-03-13 The Emergence of Distinctive Features will be of essential interest to phonologists and typologists as well as to syntacticians cognitive scientists and scholars outside linguistics interested in the nature of language and its acquisition BOOK JACKET
