dramatic skills Shakespeare lavished on it could never yield great drama He argues that none of the romances has a profound message whatever meaning one finds in Pericles for instance can be found just as readily in Apollonius of Tyre Thus to look to these plays for greatness or for profound themes or ideas is to be inevitably disappointed or self deluded What one does find in the romances though are plays that diverge sharply from their sources and analogues and from other drama of the period in the attention given to the creation of a sense of wonder Mincoff finds in the systematic control of language crafting of scenes and altering of sources in the plays the suggestion of supernatural influence upon the play's action that exploits the wonderful inherent in Heliodorian romance Mincoff suspects that this sense of wonder really was important to Shakespeare and finds Lafew's words in All's Well That Ends Well both a rather bitter commentary on Jacobean society and a clue to our better understanding of the romances They say miracles are past and we have our philosophical persons to make modern and familiar things supernatural and causeless Hence it is that we make trifles of terrors ensconcing ourselves into seeming knowledge when we should submit ourselves to an unknown fear Mincoff can spot that which is truly unusual in the romances because of his extensive knowledge of the other drama and other literature of the period and because of his ability to place the plays within the context of their own time He places the above quotation for example within contemporary responses to skepticism he discusses such dramaturgical devices as Presenters and expository supernumeraries in the context of other plays that Shakespeare's audiences would have been seeing he is alert to the differences between our present day understanding of life and language and that of Shakespeare's age showing how words like art and nature are today understood in postromantic terms that make them far different words representing far different concepts from those used by Shakespeare in his romances
